GOLD KEY: Symbol of Goodwill

The Gold Key Society of Boston College, whose members are drawn from all schools and classes, is prominent in all campus activities. If you have attended any of the Business Conferences, conventions, convocations or Science Fairs, you have undoubtedly noticed the courteous guides and ushers wearing the golden arm-band of the Key. They were providing information, parking cars, and seeing that all were cordially welcomed to Boston College.

No matter what the occasion, the Gold Key is ready and eager to assist. A member of the Faculty described the Key as "the one group on the campus who are ready and willing to greet a Cardinal or to shovel snow."

Naturally the work of this organization requires a high order of generosity on the part of its members. When a student joins the Key he is told that all work is voluntary and that there is no reward or personal glory apart from the satisfaction of giving genuine service. Only a Junior or Senior is privileged to wear the Gold Key, the award for outstanding service and sacrifice.

Carens on Gold Key

Traveler columnist George C. Carens recently eulogized the Gold Key thus: "It was back in 1936 that B. C. launched its Gold Key activities at the suggestion of the then dean, now president of the college at Chestnut Hill, the Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S.J. In the intervening years, the Heights student greeters have operated with varying success. But there is agreement among the B. C. athletic administrators that the current operators are better meshed than any of their predecessors."

Graduate Manager John P. Curley, B. C. 1913, puts it, "Our Gold Key Society, working quietly and efficiently, has really spread out this fall. Before the snow flies the members will have proved their value to the college in many ways. On Oct. 15 and 29, the deans of New England colleges will gather at B. C. for a pair of conferences. On Nov. 11—Career Day at the Heights—prospective future students on the high school level will be introduced to the efficient ways of the Gold Key groups."

An introduction to the stars as seen from the Eternal City

...come to the Vatican

"We invite you as guest for the month of August. Have a good trip."

I think no one would refuse such an invitation, considering the fact that it came from the other side of the globe, from the Eternal City. That was last spring. For me as a Jesuit it was more than an invitation: it was an order from my Superiors. Nor was it intended as a pleasure trip. The purpose of this visit was to get acquainted with the work at the Vatican Observatory and eventually return there next year to join the staff permanently. Orders are orders: my summer school classes were canceled and on the 20th of July I once again had a chance to take a close look at the Statue of Liberty and a far look at the vanishing skyline of New York.

The Vatican Observatory is as old as our calendar and as well equipped as the best in Europe. However, during recent years it suffered heavy losses in scientists. At present, the scientific personnel consists of only two astronomers and two astro-physicists. Considering the fact that the Observatory has four domes, two in operation and two in advanced stages of construction, one realizes the great disproportion between the facilities and the manpower. No wonder that the authorities in charge are recruiting help from all corners of the world.

It is interesting to observe that the Jesuits had an important part throughout the history of the Vatican Observatory. At different periods through the centuries there were several more or less short-lived astronomical institutions under the auspices of the Popes. But steady work in the field of astronomy was carried by the Jesuits of the Roman College, founded by Gregory XIII in the XVI century. This was the place where Father Clavius wrote his three volumes in defense of the Gregorian Calendar. It was among the Jesuits of the Roman College that Galileo found friends to defend his shocking discoveries and to convince the ecclesiastical authorities of their truth. Except for the years when the Society was suppressed, astronomy flourished at the Roman College and produced scientists of world reputation. Father Angelo Secchi, to name one, was the founder of spectral classification of stars, the principles of which were internationally adopted in 1913.

In 1870 the Roman College, and nine years later also the Observatory, were expropriated by the state. The Observatory existed until 1923 under the name "Royal Observatory at the Roman College," when it died a slow death.

The Observatory on the Capitol founded by Leo XII in 1827 met the same fate of expropriation. It still exists, not under Vatican auspices, as "The Roman Observatory on Monte Mario."

On To Castel Gandolfo

The new Vatican Observatory, founded by Leo XIII in 1891, came into the hands of the Jesuits in the person of Father John G. Hagen, former director of the Georgetown Observatory, internationally famous because of his research on variable stars. Under his and his successors' leadership the Observatory outgrew the available space and the lights of the growing city became more disturbing. Pius XI donated for this purpose part of his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo. The work of installation was completed in 1935. On this occasion the instruments were modernized. Two domes were built on the house terrace. One dome contains a visual refractor with accessories for observation of variable stars. In the second dome is the main instrument, the double astrograph mounted on the same polar axis. It consists of a 60 cm. reflector and a four-lens refractor which is capable of producing spectra of stars down to the 14th magnitude. Two other domes just completed in the papal gardens wait for their implements: an astrograph for mapping the heavens and a modern Schmidt telescope. Well equipped astronomical and astrophysical laboratories place the Observatory among first class institutions. The staff, small in number is active in research and publications. Besides their well-known atlases of spectra of various substances and besides articles regularly appearing in European journals, they have two journals of their own, the "Ricerche Astronomiche" and the "Ricerche Spettroscopiche." At the moment they are working at an invention of their own, a new method of measuring the width of spectral lines.

3 Million Days

Some people think that astronomical work is very interesting. At first sight it may seem so until you have seen the clock room, have taken a ride up and down and around at the ceiling of the dome on the observation platform and have taken a peek at the crescent moon through the telescope. That is about as far as the interesting part goes. The real life of an astronomer is hard and monotonous. After many nights spent in the belfrey taking pictures the work has just started. A set of photographic plates requires months of patient study and involved calculations. We know exactly when our train will leave if we find in the timetable the departure hour EST. The astronomer must have a more absolute standard. Suppose he studies variable stars and wants to determine the magnitude of a star at different instants. To standardize these instants, first of all they must be made independent of the time it takes the light to travel from the star to the telescope. That means that the seasonal variations of the distance between that star and the earth must be eliminated. Therefore, he must convert his time into the heliocentric system. In other words, he calculates the time at which these rays would have struck his telescope if he were

Father Liuima's trip to the Vatican Observatory this summer, for all that it was pleasant, was also a "business trip". We asked several other faculty people how they spent those precious months between classes. Some of their replies:

WENT SPEECH-MAKING—Sr. M. Josephina, C.S.J. of the school of Education, addressed the Teachers' Institute of the Norwich, Conn. Diocese on "Reaching Them and Teaching Them". This, in September. Previously, this summer, she spoke on spelling problems in Denver, on testing programs in Providence, on motivating student nurses, also in Providence.

Father Thomas Fleming, S.J., assistant to Father Rector, represented us at the International Federation of Catholic Universities at Louvain University, Belgium.

Prof. Raymond deRoover, of the Economics Dept., lectured in Antwerp at the International Congress on Printing and Humanism.

Father Charles F. Donovan, S. J., Dean of the School of Ed., helped direct the Institute for Jesuit college deans at Santa Clara, and delivered a paper, too.

Father James F. Moynihan, S.J. of the Psychology Dept., was a panel member at the Boston Archdiocesan Teachers' Institute, keynoted the 3rd Annual Meeting of N. E. supervisors of Catholic schools here at B. C.

Frederick J. Ferris, M.S.W., School of Social Work, spoke at Pine-woods Institute, then toured to San Francisco for the National Conference of Social Work.

WROTE A BOOK—Dr. Samuel J. Miller of History and Government, went to Europe (he's still there) to gather material on Lutheran reformers. Dr. M. Kamil Dzreivanowski, of the same dept., combined business with business! He took 14 students all over Europe, at the same time collected data on a famous Polish patriot for a book coming out soon from the Harvard press.

Dr. Vincent A. McCrossen, professor of literature, published a book, "The Empty Room" which starts with the "prayer room" in the U. N. Bldg., and goes on from there.

EXPLORED—Father Daniel Linehan, S.J., came home again from Antarctica, having made geophysical studies there. Father Skehan, S.J., and Mr. Sherry, S.J., of the Seismological Observatory, ran a seismic survey for the Central Maine Power Co.

KEPT LECTURING—Dr. Michael Albery, Economics, toured Spain, lecturing as he went under the auspices of the Institute for International Education. Prof. Alexander Nekem, Law, taught at Northwestern University.

ALMOST WENT MAD—Prof. Marie Andrews, School of Nursing, had a polio epidemic, two floods and a full teaching load to contend with.

PREPARING CLASSES—Dr. Hans G. Haefeli, professor of Mathematics, traveled the Mediterranean ports, visited Communist Yugoslavia, Austria, and Switzerland for a holiday with his parents, and he found time to look over different books on the Theory of Functions of a Real Variable and outlining various topics to be covered during the coming year.

sitting and observing on the sun. This heliocentric time must again be converted into the sidereal time, which is commonly used in astronomy. This again must be expressed in Greenwich time, to eliminate the regional differences in time. (This step is unnecessary for astronomers working at the Greenwich Observatory). Finally, Greenwich time must be expressed in terms of the Julian day which is just the consecutive day counted from the origin date of the Julian Calendar, 4713 B.C. (At the moment the count is in the third million.) To make things more complicated, a Julian day starts at noon instead of at midnight. After all these calculations have been completed, the only thing we have found is the "standard" time at which this single plate was exposed. There may be hundreds of plates for the same star for different times; there is a countless multitude of such stars. A long story? I agree. And I think you will agree with me that a special vocation is needed to be an astronomer.

Lebe Der Heilige Vater

Interesting distractions from this monotony were the mass audiences given by the Pope every Wednesday and Saturday at six o'clock. To increase the holding capacity of the inner yard where the audiences are held, steel structures with benches are permanently erected on the terraces of the building. The total capacity is 6000 people and is always filled to the last available space. Sometimes the crowd is twice as large and the rest remain outside the yard on the street. People start gathering more than an hour before the time so that at 5:30 the yard is already tightly filled. Before the Pope appears, some have been standing there for one hour and a half. No wonder that some faint before even seeing the Pope. (A First Aid room is right there!) People feel as though they were in Church, carrying rosaries, singing hymns in Latin and in their native languages. Often different groups sing different songs in different languages simultaneously. To increase the chaos, some children's groups may start "O Sole Mio" or "Santa Lucia" on their own. Shortly before six the atmosphere becomes tense, songs stop. All eyes are fixed on the doorknob of the second-floor balcony door. This is literally so, because as soon as the doorknob turns, before the door opens, a loud roar ends the silence. "Viva il Papa," "Long live the Pope," "Lebe der Heilige Vater," "Vive le Pape" and still other languages mix to a common chorus. Hats and handkerchiefs wave through the air. It takes several minutes to calm down. Then the Pope speaks. At first in Italian, to all. Then he calls single groups by name and to each one he has something to say. Besides Italian, he speaks French, Dutch, English, German and Spanish.

After about 20 minutes the Pope gives his blessing and departs under loud applause by the crowds. Often the applause and the shouting are so persistent, that the Pope appears again and again. One of the groups mentioned everytime by the Pope was the U. S. Army, Navy and Air Force.

I soon experienced that it was dangerous to leave the house, even my room, on the days of audience. Coming back you found the castle surrounded by gendarmes and police. Nobody (really nobody) could get in without a pass. Even the corridors and staircases were patrolled to assure one-way traffic up to the terraces. I soon learned the trick and also my first sentence in Italian: "Io sono della Specola" (I belong to the Observatory.) That was an effective password I had to repeat it many times during the weeks I lived there. I had no difficulties from the Swiss guards who stay at the gate in uniform day and night. They knew me from the first day and passed me freely in and out with a clap of their heels. It was only on those days of audiences, when extra force was recruited, that the clashes occurred.

The trip was quite an experience, educational and recreational. But I did not throw any coins into the famous Trevi Fountain in Rome, the necessary condition for return, so I doubt that I will ever get another chance.

Fr. Rector's Report

The University enrollment for 1955-56 is 9117, with 7096 students registered for the Fall term. And, although only 44% of those who applied for admission to the freshman class in the undergraduate schools were accepted for registration, there are 470 more students in the first year class this year than there were five years ago. To provide for this increase in the student body we have appointed thirty-eight new members to the full-time University faculty, including nine Jesuits, nineteen laymen and ten women, bringing our total faculty to 448 members. This is one measure of the continued growth of the University and of our efforts to meet the increasing demand for the opportunity of Catholic higher education in this community. Another indication of our development during the past year will be seen in the accompanying photographs of the new building for our School of Education, and the new residence halls for our boarding students, completed this Fall and dedicated by our beloved alumnus, Archbishop Cushing, in September. We now have 372 undergraduate men living on campus. If the facilities were available there would be many more. Actually, there are 665 students registered from out-of-state, 36 of them from foreign nations. A substantial number of our Massachusetts students are from communities beyond commuting distance and are boarding in the Boston area.

An analysis of our enrollment this Fall shows that 2310 of our students are women, 1886 of them undergraduates. The total undergraduate registration is 5774, with 1322 in the graduate and professional schools. There are 1181 veterans, or about 16% of the student body. The total number of full-time students in the first year classes of all the schools this Fall is 1788.

New Appointments

There have been several new administrative appointments in the schools and colleges. Father Thomas Spillane, S.J., is the Assistant Dean in the College of Arts and Sciences. Father Robert Drinan, S.J., '42 and a graduate of Georgetown Law School, is the Assistant Dean at the Law School. Father Richard Burke, S.J., '38 and a graduate of the School of Social Work, was appointed Acting Dean of the School to replace Miss Dorothy Book, who died in August. Miss Book had been dean of the School of Social Work since 1942 and a zealous and devoted member of our faculty for twenty years. She was awarded an honorary degree at our June Commencement in 1953. Her death was a loss, not only to our School of Social Work and the University, but to the community and her profession which she so ably served.

In the College of Business Administration, Doctor Donald White, '43, has been appointed Associate Dean, Mr. John Conway, a member of the faculty since 1947, is the new Registrar, Doctor Gerald Price is Chairman of the Department of Marketing, and Mr. Joseph F. Turley has been appointed Director of the newly established Bureau of Business Research. Miss Mary T. Kinnane has been appointed Dean of Women in the School of Education, replacing Miss Marie Gearan who is now supervisor of the practice teaching program for our students of Education. Miss Elizabeth Strain has been appointed Registrar in the School of Education. At the School of Nursing Miss Mary P. Lodge, R.N., M.S., has joined the faculty as Assistant Professor and Assistant to the Dean, Miss Rita Kelleher. Father Frederick Adelmann, S.J., has been appointed Chairman of the Philosophy Department, and Doctor John Walsh is now Acting Chairman of the Education Department of the Graduate School. The work of the student counselling has increased with the enrollment and Father Henry Callahan, S.J., has been appointed Student Counsellor for the College of Arts and Sciences, while Father Charles Reardon, S.J., holds the same office for the College of Business Administration. A list of newly appointed faculty members and promotions is listed in this issue of THE ALUMNI NEWS.

More Space Needed

A comparison of recent enrollment figures for the School of Nursing and the Intown College indicates the continued growth of these schools, despite their very limited facilities at Newbury Street. The Nursing School is close to 1100, and the Intown College, which is our Evening Division for Arts and Sciences, is now almost 1000. At the Evening school more than six hundred of the students enrolled are carrying a full academic schedule over a period of five nights each week. Here again, as in the case of the campus schools many more qualified students would be enrolled if we had the space and facilities to provide for them. About three hundred and fifty of our nursing students are carrying a full-time bachelor's program. And while several hundred other registered nurses are taking their collegiate courses at Newbury Street, there is an ever increasing demand for the extension of our academic programs for nurses throughout the state and in the surrounding communities.

School of Social Work, and one which indicates a recognition of the high standards and the national reputation of the school, is that 58% of the students are receiving fellowship and scholarship aid from national, state, and local funds and agencies. Grants to our students of Social Work this year total more than $53,000. In addition to student grants, the Permanent Charity Fund and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have made grants of $11,500 this year in support of programs undertaken by our Social Work faculty.

The Greater Boston Business Conferences which have been undertaken by our College of Business Administration and supported by friends in the business community have resulted in national recognition of the success of this undertaking in the form of a $25,000 grant from the Ford Foundation in support of this program this year.

Notes On Science

Our Science departments and faculty have also continued to receive recognition and support of their basic research programs in the form of financial grants and assistance. There have been several valuable grants of equipment to our Physics department from Baird, Monsanto, Raytheon, and the New England Telephone companies, from the Research Corporation, and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. The Chemistry department has received research grants of more than $20,000 for the coming year from International Nickel, the Research Corporation, and Union Carbide and Chemical Company. The Air Force Cambridge Research Center has made a substantial grant for work undertaken by the faculty of our department of Mathematics. Within the past month we received a grant of $20,000 from the National Science Foundation for the procurement of equipment for the International Geophysical Year Antarctic Seismology Program. This grant will be administered by Father Daniel Linehan, S.J., Chairman of our Department of Geophysics and Director of our Seismology Observatory. Father Linehan is now on his way to the Antarctic with Admiral George Dufek as a consultant to the United States Navy on "Operation Deep-freeze." Thus, in summary, we have received more than $100,000 in financial grants and assistance for our faculty research programs for this year. With our limited financial resources, it is only through such assistance that many of our research undertakings may be carried on.

*Dorms named after Jesuit saints—
Loyola, Xavier and Claver Halls*

Where Eagles Rest

and break in their new quarters

THE NEW Boston College dormitories, Claver, Loyola and Xavier Halls, were officially dedicated and opened on Sept. 27, 1955, by His Excellency, Archbishop Richard J. Cushing. Assisting the Archbishop were Msgr. Rossiter, Master of Ceremonies, Reverend Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S.J., President, and Reverend Harold Kirley, S.J. The new halls, together with Southwell, St. Joseph's and Cardinal O'Connell Halls, supply dormitory facilities for 366 resident students.

His Excellency spoke briefly before the gathering of guests and resident students, citing recent dedications as "an indication of the extraordinary growth of Catholic education in the archdiocese of Boston." These blessings mark the progress of the Church in the field of teaching; they are "symbolic of the demand on the part of the people to have their children's education integrated with religion."

Following the address, the Archbishop personally greeted every resident student present and tea was served to the invited guests including Reverend Thomas J. Fleming, S.J., Executive Assistant to the President, Rev. Joseph Shea, S.J., Dean of Men, Rev. Edmund Walsh, Dean of Admissions, Messrs. John King, John Morrissey, and Charles Bowen of Bowen and Company, Mr. Fred Dyer, architect of the new building, Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts, president of the Philomathia Club, and Mr. Edward Gallagher, president of the Alumni Association.

Picture of a Catholic

Proof that there's no such thing as a stereotyped Catholic

By EDWARD H. NOWLAN, S.J.

IF THERE IS one thing which all sensible social psychologists are careful to avoid, it is the practise of stereotyping. As Lippman first used the term, stereotypes are "pictures in our heads" which provide us with ready-made frames of reference for explaining incidents about which we are only partly informed. Thus, without knowing anything about it, most of us would have a fairly clear picture in our heads about what went on if an Irishman and an Englishman were hailed into court for fighting in the street. Actually, in the incident I have in mind the two participants were not fighting at all, the Englishman having fallen from his bicycle and the Irishman lending him a kindly, helping hand. It was the "picture in the head" of the passing policeman that caused the misunderstanding.

Any one who proposes to talk of the picture of "the Catholic" is wide open to the charge of stereotyping. He is projecting a highly standardized perception of all the members of a class of people known as Catholics, —a highly reprehensible activity. Being aware of this, I hasten to protest that there is no standard Catholic attitude toward all the aspects of social living. Some Catholics are quite conservative in their attitudes, some are rather liberal; some are pro-labor, others pro-management; some idealistic, some almost cynical in their realism; some are Democrats, some Republicans.

But amidst the welter of diverging attitudes certain uniformities begin clearly to emerge. This is true because inevitably attitude tests impinge upon important Catholic teachings in the area of Faith and Morals. Non-Catholics are astonished at our conformity; Catholics are amazed that it is not one hundred per cent. Take the matters of mercy killing, birth control, divorce, sterilization and abortion. Church teaching is clear on these points and Catholics in general react accordingly. If these issues are used as an index of conservatism or liberalism, Catholics are dubbed conservatives in advance.

Less clear agreement among Catholics is found on issues which are more or less tangential to Faith and morals such as keeping company with non-Catholics, the possible evils of totally uncontrolled reproduction, censorship of movies, mixed marriages, and borderline moral problems like "petting" when vaguely defined.

In the area of religious belief the Catholic is inevitably conservative. He stands out as a champion of an old Faith and clings steadfastly to its beliefs and practises. At least so say those who have compared Catholics with others in this matter. Allport, Gillespie and Young ("The Religion of the Postwar College Student," Journal of Psychology, 1948, 25, 3-33) writes: "While the average apostasy from parental faith is 50%, among Roman Catholics it is not over 15% for men and 0% for women." These data were drawn from a religious questionnaire given to 414 Harvard graduates and 86 Radcliffe undergraduates in November, 1946. Out of 14 Catholic Radcliffe girls polled, all 14 said that Catholicism meets their present religious needs. For some reason or other, only 16 out of 64 Harvard Catholics involved answered this query about their present religious needs. Eleven out of sixteen said that Catholicism meets their present religious needs. This does not seem very high to us but it is high compared to the over-all figure for Harvard students. Only 40% of these found the satisfaction of present religious needs in the Faith in which they were reared. For Roman Catholics the figure was 85%. "By various criteria," remark these authors, "Students who subscribe to Roman Catholicism are 'most religious'; to Protestant Christianity less so; to Judaism, still less so. Least religious are those who think a new type of religion is required."

SOME SURPRISES occurred in this quiz. Example: two per cent of the Harvard Catholics do not believe in a personal God and fourteen per cent have no belief in personal immortality. This seems high to us but not when compared to the 75% of the total subjects who likewise denied personal immortality. That there could be any Catholics who deny these basic dogmas must stem from a lack of training in the Faith.

There is one area in which some of the findings for Catholic attitudes are somewhat disturbing. I refer to the matter of racial prejudice. In at least two well-known studies the Catholic student has turned up as harboring more prejudice than the Protestant or Jewish student. If this is true, then we have real cause for concern and for concerted educational activity. However, it may be an artifact due to the construction of the test or perhaps to the nature of the sample. We can not say until we have done some more research in this area, research which I think we should waste no time in initiating.

The two studies in which the Catholic students appeared more prejudiced were the Allport-Kramer study of "Some Roots of Prejudice" (Journal of Psych., 1946, 22, 9-39) and Rosenblith's "A Republican of 'Some Roots of Prejudice'" (Journal of Abnormal and Social Psych., Oct., 1949, vol. 44, n. 4, 470-489.) The former study involved 437 college undergraduates, 214 from Dartmouth, 166 from Harvard, and 57 from Radcliffe. Included were 110 Catholics and under the heading of "Influence of religion" they are reported as showing more anti-Negro bias than did Protestants, Jewish students, and those with no religious affiliation. 71% of the Catholics fell in the more biased half of the total sample. Only 62% of the Protestant, 22% of the Jewish, and 27% of the non-affiliated students were represented in the more biased half.

Rosenblith's study sampled the population of South Dakota and employed practically the same questionnaire as did Allport and Kramer. Involved were 861 college undergraduates from nine colleges in South Dakota, including a Catholic nursing school.

Rosenblith's findings apparently confirm those of Allport and Kramer, inasmuch as once again the Catholics lead the religious groups in anti-Negro bias. They likewise show the highest percentages of anti-Jewish and anti-Indian bias. 57.3% fall in the more biased anti-Negro half of the sample, 56.7% fall in the more anti-Jewish half, and 53.0% fall in the more anti-Indian half. These results in themselves do not look good.

I mentioned above that they may constitute an artifact resulting from misunderstanding of certain questions by the Catholic subjects. There is, for example, a question about whether I could imagine myself marrying a Jewish person. Catholics who interpret this as favoring a marriage of mixed religion would be apt to answer in the negative on the grounds that the Church opposed mixed marriages. I dare say that few Catholics would take it as referring to a converted Jewish person. Again, the question about the advisability of having Jewish students in their own fraternities and sororities might possibly be seen by Catholics in the light of preventing marriages of mixed religion. If a fair number of Catholics misunderstood these questions, it would add significantly to their score for bias.

THIS ARGUMENT is less sound by way of explaining the anti-Negro bias. Since most Negroes are non-Catholics, the fear of mixed marriages might play some role, but it does not seem it would be a significant one. As far as the samples go, I have the feeling that the Catholics look bad.

Their sampling, however, seems to be a real point of weakness. The Catholics tested by Allport and Kramer, and by Rosenblith had no Catholic college education. They were therefore relatively immature in their ability to integrate their secular studies, their social outlook and their religious beliefs. Many of them might assume the role of the "embattled believer", strongly religious, but defensive and rigid.

I was glad to learn, therefore, that the study has been repeated in four American Catholic colleges and in one in Italy. Charles T. O'Reilly reported on this study at the Eastern Psychological Ass'n meeting and found the Catholics on Catholic campuses scored much lower on prejudice than those reported in the Allport and Kramer, and the Rosenblith studies. In the discussion following the paper Rosenblith remarked that in her opinion this did not change the comparative picture. She felt that all students have become less prejudiced in the last 10 years and the time lapse between her study and Doctor O'Reilly's was what made the difference.

In order to leave a clear general impression of the present status of Catholics in this area of prejudice let me quote, once again, Gordon Allport: (The Nature of Prejudice, p. 449) "A - great many studies have been directed to the question whether Protestants or Catholics as a group display more prejudice. The results are entirely equivocal; some studies find Catholics more bigoted, some Protestants, and some find no difference".

Let me add one more word on the subject of polling. I do not think, in general, that we Catholics are very enthusiastic pollsters. We have a tendency to assume a priori that we know what goes on in the minds of our young people. We might be surprised at the insights we would derive from subjecting them to a few well constructed questionnaires. Who would have suspected a priori that 4.5% of Catholic High School students in New England would refuse to receive Communion from a Negro priest? Or that 33.3% of them would approve "petting" and "necking"?

An invaluable source of guidance for us in our educational procedures is available to us in questionnaire and polling procedures. We ought not to neglect them.

Father Charles F. Donovan, S.J.
Dean, School of Education

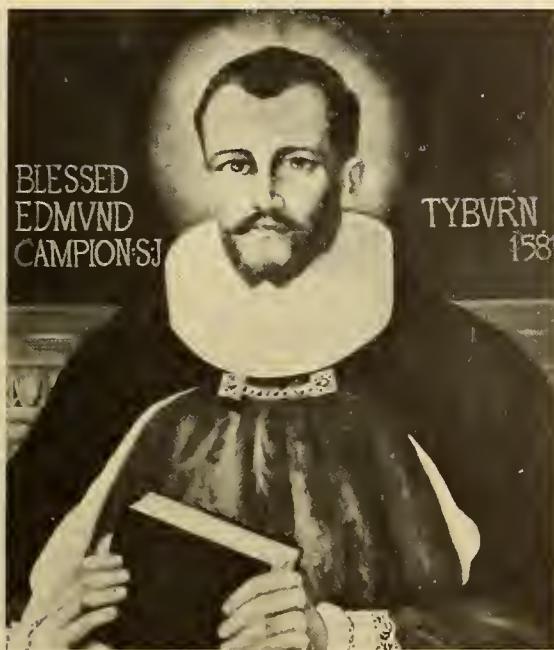

ENTRANCE into the teaching profession is a little more complicated today than it was even a decade ago. Gone are the day's when a bachelor's degree was the only certificate of eligibility needed to start one's teaching career. Many communities have adopted professional requirements — certain courses, apprenticeship, and/or some teaching experience in a paying position; and next September, by state law, a person may not receive a teacher's certificate in Massachusetts who has not had courses in stated educational areas plus student teaching. This latter requirement, student teaching, has had some bearing upon the founding of the Boston College School of Education.

For six years the Education Department of the College of Arts and Sciences has struggled manfully to provide student teaching for qualified Arts and Science Seniors who are prospective teachers. These young men have had to carry an extra elective course during the first semester of their Senior year. During the third quarter of the year they have been placed in public schools for student teaching. But that they would not fall behind in their college work, they have been required to report to the Heights every afternoon for Philosophy and Theology classes, running from 4:30 to 6:15. This was at best a makeshift arrangement, with the student doing two jobs, calling for two separate preparations daily. The inadequacy of this arrangement was one of the chief factors that led the administration of Boston College to found a School of Education, where the curriculum is devised and administered with the needs of the future teacher in mind and where a whole semester of student teaching is provided.

The School of Education is a professional school which, in the Jesuit tradition, holds close to the content and spirit of the liberal arts. Seventy-five percent of the curriculum for those preparing to teach in a secondary school is strictly humanistic; and the remaining twenty-five percent includes courses such as philosophy of education and psychology of education that are presented in the framework of scholastic thought. The curriculum for those majoring in elementary education is sixty percent humanistic, which is a stronger emphasis on the humanities than will be found in some majors in liberal arts colleges, even colleges which consider themselves faithful to the liberal arts tradition.

The professional preparation of the School of Education student reaches its climax in student teaching, which takes place during the first semester of the Senior year. This fall 140 School of Education Seniors are engaged in student teaching. Of these, 138 are in public schools. Two Missionary Sisters of Mary are in a parochial school. The following facts indicate the public relations involved in placing and supervising these student teachers. The 138 Seniors in public schools are located in 27 communities, mostly in Greater Boston. They work in 95 school buildings—52 elementary schools, 11 junior high schools, and 32 senior high schools. Cooperating with these Boston College students are 27 superintendents, 7 assistant superintendents, 95 principals or headmasters, 49 high school departmental heads, 50 city supervisors of elementary education, music, etc., and at least 150 classroom teachers. This is a total of at least 378 public school personnel who work with our Seniors for a semester and meet our college supervisors five or six times. We are grateful for the cooperation and hope our students will continue to be welcome ambassadors from and for Boston College.

Having our first Senior class this fall, placing our first student teachers in local schools, and having four classes, Freshman through Senior, for the first time have been grounds for some excitement in the School of Education in recent weeks. But this has been almost overshadowed by the experience of entering our own new building, Campion Hall. With its nineteen cheerful classrooms, its bright corridors and stairwells, its amphitheatre and auditorium, its pleasant student lounges and beautiful faculty room, its curriculum library and audio-visual center, its roomy faculty offices and cafeteria-gymnasium, Campion Hall is a dream come true. It is a pleasant place in which to work, and we hope that the added incentive of our surroundings will make the graduates of the School of Education equal to the best of their contemporaries and worthy to carry on the traditions of Boston College men and women in the teaching profession.

His Excellency Archbishop Cushing presided over the dedication ceremonies. Here the Archbishop chats with Father Rector and Edward Kennedy, brother of Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., in whose honor Campion Hall was dedicated.

Mrs. Andrews (far right) lectures while assistants demonstrate the care of a paralyzed polio patient

Profile of a Busy Woman

Just in case you ever think you're overloaded, and ready to throw up your hands in despair, think of Prof. Andrews and the summer of '55.

Mrs. Andrews (Marie J., Assoc. Prof. of Nursing Education) had her normal summer teaching schedule to spoil her vacation anyhow. But she also happens to be the National Chairman of the Nursing Advisory Committee for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. This organization makes nation-wide plans for the nursing care of every polio patient, particularly during epidemics.

Beginning to get the picture? Well, she's also the State Coordinator for Polio Nursing in Mass., and President of District #5 Mass. State Nurses Assoc.

Early this summer polio struck Massachusetts with near-epidemic force. Over 100 cases a day were entering Boston hospitals alone and the figure fluttered up near a thousand a day throughout the state for many weeks. Every patient needed constant nursing care 24 hours a day.

Working closely with the State Commissioner of Public Health, Mrs. Andrews helped set up a program that recruited more than 300 nurses locally. Volunteers, who worked day and night during the crisis, came from the Army, Navy and Public Health Service, from industry, hospitals and health agencies, and from schools of Nursing (like B. C.).

Besides helping plan the nurse recruiting program, Mrs. Andrews threw herself into the emergency training of the recruits in the latest methods of polio patient care. She not only set-up courses at B. C. and many hospitals throughout the state — she taught them, too!

It was in no small part the work of Mrs. Andrews and the other nurses of Greater Boston that won for B. C. School of Nursing an educational grant from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The fund, contributed in October through the Suffolk County Chapter of the National Foundation, will be used for a new course, "Modern Trends in Polio Nursing Care."

Chairman, Department of Physics

Frontiers in Physics

Real research in physics is always a pioneering experience, opening up new conquests of matter, new fields of understanding of the wonderful world around us, from the stars to the subatomic ingredients of the nucleus. To keep our Alumni in touch with recent developments in the laboratories, we would like to describe briefly some of the basic research projects now being pursued in the Department of Physics. All the projects are somewhat interrelated, but perhaps a separate description of four of the major research studies will be the best introduction.

Using the techniques, and a good deal of the special apparatus, developed during the war years for radar systems, the Microwave Laboratory, under the direction of Father Francis A. Liuima, S.J. is studying the absorption in various gases of microwaves of several frequencies. Several local microwave manufacturers (Raytheon, Sylvania, and the Laboratory for Electronics) have given a large amount of usable equipment to the Microwave Laboratory. It is hoped that accurate measurements of molecular diameters, of the natural frequencies with which molecules vibrate, and of similar molecular properties will be achieved shortly.

Sharing the same crowded quarters with the microwave people, is the Ultrasonics Laboratory, where a study of the absorption of ultrasonic energy in liquids is being carried out under the direction of Professor Frederick E. White, well-known to our Physics Alumni for his many years of service in the Department, and especially for his crystal-clear teaching and patient counselling. Sponsored by the Office of Ordnance Research, the project aims to discover the absorption of very high frequency vibrational energy, 30 to 300 million cycles per second, in various types of liquids. The absorption varies for different liquids or solutions, and depends also on the temperature; all aspects of this phenomenon, for which there is as yet not a single good theoretical explanation, are being probed.

Spectroscopy, Nuclear Research

Another sponsored research project, which besides making faculty research possible also supports a talented graduate student, is being carried out in the Spectroscopy Laboratory, under the direction of Father James J. Devlin, S. J. Several different projects are under way in the Laboratory, now located permanently at the site of the summer institutes in Modern Industrial Spectrography, directed each summer by Father Devlin. A Research Corporation grant finances a broad investigation of the characteristic stretching vibrations of a whole series of organic compounds. Since these vibrations come in the infrared regions of the spectrum a special spectrometer was provided for the project by the joint liberality of the Research Corporation, and the maker of the instrument, Baird Associates. The presence of the infrared spectrometer, a recording type which plots an accurate absorption curve for each substance investigated, is of importance to the Department of Chemistry, especially the organic chemists. Other instruments of work in the Spectroscopy Laboratory: a large grating spectrograph, loaned by the Jarrell-Ash Company, in constant use by graduate students for research in the determination of the composition of alloys, glasses, and other compounds; an x-ray diffraction unit, the gift of the Plastics Division of the Monsanto Chemical Company.

Only a few months older than the Microwave Laboratory, the Nuclear Physics Laboratory has also grown rapidly, and now provides full-scale laboratory work for both undergraduate and graduate courses. The principal research project is one made possible by a grant of the Permanent Science Fund of the American Academy of Arts and Science to Father William G. Guindon, S. J., for a study of the angular correlation of successive gamma rays emitted from the same nucleus. This study has fundamental importance because from the measurement of the change in direction of emission of these successive rays one can determine the character of the nucleus which emits them. A planned extension of the research work of the Nuclear Laboratory is the establishment of a program of study of nuclear emulsions: the microscopic study of special photographic plates, impregnated with various chemical elements and exposed to cosmic radiation or bombardment in a high energy accelerator such as a cyclotron, reveals tracks indicative of miniature nuclear explosions and of the production of the whole series of sub-atomic particles called "mesons".

The Thread of Research

It probably has struck the reader that there is a thread of unity connecting these various research projects: all center on the absorption of some sort of radiation by a molecular or atomic system. The ultrasonic project employs mechanical vibrations of "low" frequencies, not greater than 300 million cycles per second; microwave, infrared, visible, x-ray, and gamma-ray spectroscopy is involved with much larger frequencies of electromagnetic radiation (which we know as light if it happens to have a certain limited range of frequencies, about a thousand million million cycles per second!).

Another common thread, not so apparent, is the dependence of all the experimental work on electronic apparatus. Even in the spectroscopic investigations a certain amount of electronic gear, which must be kept in first-rate condition, is employed. In all the other projects, practically the whole instrumentation is electronic—a fertile source of headaches for the researcher of limited budget! A large amount of specialized equipment is made in our own shops, by departmental technicians, or by the graduate students in the course of their thesis research. And of course we have been blessed by the generosity of industrial friends, often at the instance of loyal alumni who have explained our needs and have made assistance possible.

A third common thread lies in the fact that all the studies converge on fundamental knowledge of the properties of matter. The Department of Physics, in carrying out these studies, and in its hopes to broaden still more its coverage of fundamental modern problems, is motivated by a hierarchy of aims. In the supernatural order, of course, our primary aim is to bring all things, even the smallest subatomic particle, under the reign of Christ, making all conspire to give glory to God. And on the human and natural plane, we aim to discover more and more of the wonders of God's world, and to teach these wonders to the youth entrusted to us.

Finally, it is our hope that in providing a constant stream of trained young men and women, we will ourselves be contributing to the advance of living standards at home and abroad. Possessed of the fundamental techniques and of a zeal for fundamental knowledge, our young physicists will, we trust, continue to provide the material for new advances by the nation's engineers.

In conclusion, the part of Boston College Alumni in the work of the Department of Physics should be mentioned. Their contribution has been manifold. In the first place, just as in any research laboratory, research at any stage depends on the joint efforts of all who have gone before. Many graduate students have left behind valuable instruments developed during their thesis work; this was especially true of the early stages of the ultrasonics project. Secondly, in obtaining for B.C. the gift or loan of apparatus many devoted alumni have been most helpful. The Baird instrument, the x-ray diffractometer and a significant part of the instrumentation of the microwave projects were made possible by the efforts of alumni who knew our research programs, explained our needs, and convinced others of the importance of supporting research at Boston College.

Thanks To The Alumni

There are several areas in which we of the Department of Physics hope that our alumni will continue to assist us. First, they can urge even more youngsters of promising talent to join us in the exciting venture into the unknown by enrolling in the physics curriculum at B.C. Next, they may put in a good word for their Alma Mater if they learn that their firm or laboratory has serviceable equipment for distribution to colleges. Thirdly, they may find it mutually stimulating and profitable to consult members of the Department of Physics on their own research problems, or to arrange for special projects to be carried out in our laboratories. Finally, by visiting us to see at first hand our new laboratory facilities and by learning of the up-to-the-minute training we are striving to give to graduate and undergraduate students, they may aid us in placing our students in summer and permanent positions where their talents and training will be employed to best advantage. With the enthusiastic backing of our alumni, the Department of Physics of Boston College cannot but continue to advance along the Frontiers in Physics.

The Law School's Second

A few days after the Boston College Law School opened its doors in September, 1929, the stock market crashed with a thud and America's worst depression descended on the nation. These first few days of the school's springtime were followed by years of economic hardship, by three changes in location downtown by the dwindling in enrollment during the war to a mere handful and then by the "GI bulge" of students for whom perfect facilities were not available.

The law school's first year in its handsome new building on the Heights has, however, supplied proof that the school's winter is over and that its "second spring" is at hand. A new spirit of activity and scholarship has taken possession of faculty and students alike. The evidence indicates that the Boston College Law School is an institution with quite a future.

The Faculty Increases

Father Robert F. Drinan, S.J. ('42) was appointed in June as assistant dean and assistant professor of criminal law and family law. Father Drinan received his LL.B. and LL.M. from Georgetown University Law School and is a member of the Bar of the District of Columbia. In August of this year he attended the meeting of the International Association of Catholic Jurists held in connection with the world convocation of Pax Romana in England. Father Drinan is a regular contributor on legal-moral topics to several reviews which include the Georgetown Law Journal, America, Catholic World and Commonweal.

Also added to the faculty is Mr. William E. Hogan, ('49), a member of the Massachusetts Bar. Assistant Professor Hogan recently served as special assistant to the chief of agency at the Medical Procurement Agency. He will teach Commercial Law and Restitution.

Library Moves Ahead

The library of the law school, under the able direction of Mr. Stephen G. Morrison, LL.B., has made marked progress. Student help has been minimized, and for the first time three full-time, trained librarians are employed. Miss Ellen Craig, LL.B., a member of the Massachusetts Bar, is assistant librarian; Miss Herta Varenais, J.U.D., is head of circulation and Miss Cora Cobb is cataloger.

The number of volumes, as of June 30, 1955, has increased to 37,231 with an annual increment of over 1,500 a year. This is exclusive of the 162 current legal periodicals received regularly.

The library has been fortunate in recent gifts and desires to express its deep gratitude to all its benefactors, only some of whom can be mentioned here. Library gifts were received from the class of 1955; from the estate of the Honorable James B. Carroll of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts; from the estate of the Honorable John P. Higgins of the Superior Court of the Commonwealth; from Honorable Elijah Adlow of the Boston Municipal Court; from Mr. Bernard Baldwin for the Baldwin Collection in memory of his father, James H. Baldwin. The Baldwin Collection will be placed in the Maney Browsing Room for which Mrs. Clement J. Maney has graciously supplied furnishings.

Faculty and Students in the Legal World

The first year of the law school's second quarter century has seen a veritable "second spring" of activity among the faculty and students. On September 12 Dean William J. Kenealy, S.J., spoke to over 400 lawyers and judges after the Red Mass in Bridgeport, Connecticut, an event arranged largely by the alumni of Boston College Law School. On October 1, Father Kenealy celebrated the Red Mass in Boston and the following day was the celebrant of the Red Mass in Chicago. The Dean has prepared an article for publication in the forthcoming issue of the Catholic Lawyer; it is a 3,500 word commentary on an article on the natural law which appeared in the May issue of the Journal of the American Bar Association.

Professor William J. Curran, former counsel of the "Baby Hoover Commission", in Massachusetts has published another article in the field of legal medicine of which he is a professor at Harvard Medical School. His article, "Expert Psychiatric Evidence of Personality Traits" is featured in the June 1955 issue of the University of Pennsylvania Law Journal.

Professor Alexander Nekam was selected to teach at the Northwestern University School of Law during the past summer. Professor William J. O'Keefe continues to teach at the graduate school on the question of the legal aspects of public school administration.

The Annual Survey of Massachusetts Law, to which many of the faculty contribute and which is edited by the school under the direction of Professor Curran, continues to attract favorable attention. The next annual survey is now in preparation.

Students have rivalled professors in a veritable "second spring" of unprecedented activity. On April 14, 1955, the school was host to the Sixth Annual Northeast Conference of the American Law Student Association. Fifty-three delegates from eleven accredited law schools of New York and New England held all their sessions and discussions at the law school's new building.

On December 8, 1955, the Student Bar Association will collaborate in the first "Career Day" at the law school. This will be an occasion to invite all the seniors of New England's many colleges to a sample day at the law school—classes, mock trial and other exercises. In preparation for this event a brochure on the study of law at the Boston College Law School is now in preparation.

Other Developments

On October 17, the law school sponsored a luncheon to felicitate the 54 alumni who passed the most recent Massachusetts Bar examinations. Plans are progressing to intensify the activities of the law school alumni and to institute an annual Memorial Mass for deceased alumni.

The student activities of the Saint Thomas More Society continue to increase under the direction of Father John A. Tobin, S.J., spiritual director of the school. A publication, Moreana, of this group continues to grow in interest and influence. The annual law school retreat will be conducted during the first part of Holy Week. Father Thurston Davis, S.J., Editor in Chief of America Magazine, will speak at the first Communion breakfast of the Saint Thomas More Society.

The enrollment for 1955-56 totals 477. Of these 171 are veterans, 26 are women, 72 (or 15%) are non-Catholics, 96 are from outside of Massachusetts.

PENOLOGIST, PROFESSOR

CANDOR could have been John Gavin's middle name. He makes no bones about speaking his mind—out of this forthrightness flow the frank comments and the deep interest in helping men in prison that have won John the respect of the prison inmates with whom he has worked for the past twenty years. John began his career in 1936 as a Corrections Officer, "that's a guard, a common guard," he explains. Two years later he enrolled at B.C. Intown but it was not until 1948 that he graduated. "My tea pot and I spent two years in the Navy," John laughs. Today he is Director of Camps, a program which ends his search for a prison in which "prisoners might assume the natural dignity that is the right of every man."

Picture, if you can, a prison without walls, without armed guards, without even a sign labeling it as a prison. A penal camp in the Myles Standish State Forest where the only wall is a prisoner's honor but away from which only four men have fled. The system was lauded by the recent Wessel report and approved by the Legislature which has recently appropriated funds for three more camps.

About the system, Gav says: "The Camps are not a cure-all for penal problems. They are rather a necessary link between the maximum security of walled institutions and the return to the open community."

Gav is not only a trained penologist, he's an articulate one. For four years, from 1950 to 1954 he "professored" a course in Criminology at B.C. Intown. From it, his students drew not only the fine theory found in the textbooks; they got the peppery, practical reactions of 15 years spent in handling social misfits. "These misfits" in one of his classic summations, "are a product of the negligence of our own communities. All of our agencies have failed with them. Our job in prison work is to try to pick up the pieces."

Gav lives in Belmont. His wife, Peg, is B.C. also, 1941. They have three children.

CAREERS—40 members of the CBA Alumni, for the third year running, volunteered to conduct "dry run" interviews for Seniors, and write a critique sheet on the interview, letter and resume.

Other Alumni are serving on career counseling panels. The first of three series took place in October and November to help in career-orientation. First-series contributors: Leo Carey, '50, Charles Doherty, '51, John P. Murray, Jr., '51, William Lynch, '50, T. X. Cronin, '45, Andrew Carnegie, '43.

Over 2000 high school seniors took advantage of the annual Open House held at the College on Friday, November 11. The College of Arts & Sciences, the College of Business Administration, the Schools of Education and Nursing, and the Intown Evening College participated. Personally conducted tours provided the young people with a bird's eye view of the academic, as well as the extracurricular activities at the College. The students were the guests of the College for lunch, and the Holy Cross and Boston College freshman football game at Alumni Field.

BAGHDAD TO CLINK AUDITORIUM—Rev. James L. Burke, S.J., sailed this summer to serve as a consultant on a new educational program being set up at Baghdad College, Iraq. Father Burke has been Dean of the Graduate School, Director of the Summer Sessions, and, more recently, New England Province Prefect for College and Universities.

Behind the new marble front on the first floor of B. C. Intown School at 126 Newbury Street is the Chapel of St. Francis Xavier, just completed. Built as much for the people who live and work in the area as for the students, the new shrine adds another much-needed quiet place of peace in the busy city. Confessions will be heard and Masses said regularly. Staff Jesuits will be available for counsel. Above the altar of the 300-seat chapel hangs a painting of the Saint which won a national award in Japan on the 400th anniversary of his death.

In Father Clink Auditorium of St. Ignatius' Church, these past few months, many Alumni rediscovered "Ethics". This time with their wives, some 500 attendants at the B. C. Adult Institute could now place against the background of practical experience the old theses. And there's no doubt they enjoyed the intellectual stimulation.

One reason was the "faculty", everyone not only an expert but a brilliant speaker: Fathers Robert Drinan, S.J., and Edward Nowlan, S.J., on Modern Morality; Father Kenealy, S.J., on Legal Ethics; Father Michael Walsh, S.J., on Medical Ethics; Thomas Bresnahan, '19, on Ethics and Communism; Father John W. Ryan, S.J., '30, on Ethics and Literature; Judge John J. Connolly, '30, on Ethics and Juvenile Delinquency.

The cost was nominal—$5 for the 7-lecture series. Another, larger series is planned this winter. For information, call Father Ryan at DE 2-3200.

COMMUNITY SERVICE—CBA has just established a Bureau of Business Research, the 62nd Business School in the country to do so. The Bureau will cooperate with industry and government agencies in designing, and executing, economic studies. Joseph F. Turley, formerly research economist for the Mass. Dept. of Commerce, is the director.

ADMISSION TO BOSTON COLLEGE

APPLICATION

Application for admission should be made early in the student's senior year. Special application forms are supplied by the Admission's Office.

METHODS OF ADMISSION

Without Entrance Examinations: Students with certificating grades (usually a mark of "B") are admitted without examinations.

With Entrance Examinations: Students who do not present certificating grades must take the Scholastic Aptitude Test given by the College Entrance Examination Board, P. O. Box 592, Princeton, New Jersey.

The candidate's high school record and the recommendation of the high school principal are paramount factors in determining acceptance.

COURSES RECOMMENDED FOR ADMISSION

Boston College recommends that units for admission include the following: English 4, Algebra 1 and Plane Geometry 1.

There is no language requirement for admission to any division of Boston College, but two years of a modern or ancient language are desirable secondary school units.

Students desiring to major in Mathematics, Physics or Chemistry must present additional units in Mathematics.

Students are admitted on the basis of scholarly attainment, character and ability to profit by college studies.

The Director of Admissions is always happy to interview the candidates for admission and discuss with them their program of studies. Personal interviews may be arranged by calling DEcatur 2-3200, Extension 212.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Students with interest and ability but limited financial resources frequently may obtain aid in the form of grants, scholarships and loans. Financial assistance ranges from $100 to $600. All scholarship candidates must file a formal application for admission. After the application has been received, an application for financial aid will be sent to the candidate. All scholarship candidates must take the Scholastic Aptitude Test given by the College Entrance Examination Board in January or March.

Living Textbook

EXPENSES AND HOUSING

The tuition fee is $600 per year. Laboratory fees attached to same courses are noted in the College Bulletin. Books and supplies will average from $40 to $60.

The fee for board and room is $660 per year. Cardinal O'Cannell Hall, St. Joseph's Hall, Southwell Hall, Claver Hall, Xavier Hall and Loyola Hall provide campus boarding facilities for men. Meals are served in the new cafeteria in Lyons Hall.

Women students board off campus in dormitories located ten minutes from the college and supervised by the Dean of Women.

On October 27, the first session of the 55-56 Greater Boston Seminars considered how the Legislature fits into the economic picture. Appropriately, members of the General Court took part including Senators Richard Furbush, Philip Graham and Mario Umana, and Representative Michael Skerry, Harrison Chadwick and Harry Coltr. The program was broadcast by radio and TV. These seminars have already made an impact on the economic life of Boston. In recognition of this contribution, the Ford Foundation has underwritten the '55-'56 series with a $25,000 grant. This generous gift takes the financial pressure off the Business School which sponsors the seminars.

DELTA ETA REUNION—The oldest business fraternity in the U.S., Alpha Kappa Psi, has become the first fraternity at the Business School. This professional honor society offers much in the way of prestige and contacts to B-school students. Some specific benefits of Delta Eta (mystic symbols of the B. C. chapter): National placement service; members' directory, distributed to 2000 U.S. business firms; loan privileges up to $500.

The new fraternity's first program includes a series of weekly business luncheons with recent CBA graduates at the speakers' table.

PLAYWRIGHT—The Blackfriars' Guild in New York is celebrating its fifteenth anniversary with a revival of "Song Out of Sorrow," a biographical drama on Francis Thompson, by Felix Doherty '31, formerly director of publicity at B. C.

New York dramatic critics, without exception, have unqualified praise for the craftsmanship of the play and its production. "It is a sensitively written work that is being expertly acted. The author's tone is subdued and rueful." (N.Y. Times). "Although the plot sounds depressing, Doherty has succeeded in making it refreshingly human, at times funny, at times stirring, and generally convincing." (N.Y. Post). "The production is an excellent one for the Blackfriars' record. Its violence is convincing and its tenderness is most moving." (N.Y. World-Telegram). "It is written with tenderness and understanding. The acting is of very high calibre." (Daily Telegraph). "Its acting requirements are enormous, and there is an ingenuous quality about the writing." (Journal-American). The play is attracting large and enthusiastic audiences and is scheduled to continue through the Thanksgiving holidays.

Father Daniel Linehan, S.J., '27, having just returned from the Antarctic, is on his way back again. Here the redoubtable itinerant joins Rear Admiral George Dufek, leader of the latest "Operation Deep Freeze" and Father Rector at a lecture given by Admiral Dufek in October at Campion Hall.

Over 450 CBA Alumni heard U. S. Senator John Kennedy at their Annual Dinner in Lyons Hall on Campus, October 29th. The Senator spoke on New England Economy and his own trip to Poland. Afterward he answered questions for about 15 minutes.

The President, Father Maxwell, the Dean, Father Joyce and the Associate Dean, Dr. White also addressed those present.

John V. Curry, '45, the Toastmaster, suggested that each year it be the custom for the Dean to deliver a "State of the Union" message to the Alumni on events and projects at the College.

Attorney Charles Barrett, '52, was Chairman. Paul Fay and John Van Tassel, both 1950 Grads were Publicity and Ticket Chairman.

The first Patriarch of the Byzantine-Melkite Rite to visit the U. S. was honored with the degree, Doctor of Letters and Laws by Boston College late this summer. His Beatitude Maximos IV, Patriarch of Antioch and all the East, was the guest of Archbishop Cushing. Shown here with the distinguished prelates: Father John J. Ryan, S.J., '30, Dean, College of Arts and Sciences, left, and Monsignor Eltimios Saba, pastor of the Byzantine-Melkite Our Lady of the Annunciation Church in Boston.

Berkshire County

A meeting of the Club was held on October 9 at the home of president William J. Broderick, '51. The members plan meetings along the lines of a discussion group covering local and national problems. F. Richard Drennan, L'50, is vice-president, and Robert J. Donelan, '48, sec'y-treasurer.

Cincinnati

President Paul P. Kane, '49, and club members arranged an enthusiastic welcome for the football team, coaches staff and friends in Cincinnati for the B. C. - Xavier game on October 29. Prior to this get-together a business meeting was held in September at the Naval Training Center.

Alumni moving into the area are urged to get on the club mailing list.

Connecticut

Alumni from all over the state gathered at the Hotel Statler on October 17 for a reception and dinner honoring Very Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, S.J. President Timothy L. Curran, M.D., '34, West Hartford and Thomas A. Duffy, '36, Wethersfield were in charge of the affair and report it a success. Club members presented a check to Father Rector.

Father Rector gathers with the B. C. Alumni in Florida before the B. C. - Miami football game.

Detroit

Club secretary John W. Carley, '51 sends the following news:

"The Boston College Clubs' newly elected officers, Pete Carey, President, Ed Powers, Vice President, and John Carley '51, Sect'y-Treasurer, sponsored a stag get together at Jack Ivory's beautiful Polo Clubhouse on October 1, 1955. Distinguished speakers included our own Msgr. Rt. Rev. Carroll F. Deady '22 Supt. of Parochial Schools in Detroit, Circuit Judge Joseph A. Moynihan, and Ed Corbett, V. President of Geyer Advertising.

Some of our favorite "Bald Eagles" who helped make the evening an enjoyable one included Charlie Joyce '28, Sales representative for William H. Sadlier; Joe Beattie '25, Social Worker; Larry McCarthy '32, Salesman for Willard Storage Battery, Tom Eagan '27, Dearborn Machine Movers, and of course, Club President Pete Carey, Ad man for Geyer Advertising Agency. Some of the later graduates attending included Bill McGagh '50, Sales Analyst with Chrysler Corp., Bill Boodro '48 C.P.A.; Tom Robinson with the F.B.I., '47; Paul King '43, Financial Analyst with Chrysler Corp.; Paul Ryder '47, Industrial Relations Staff for Ford Motor Company; Joe Tobin '51 with General Motors, and Tom Ralph '48. Those present at the function were treated to a delicious dinner of steak and cornish hen and a wonderful evening of entertainment.

On June 18th the B. C. Club sponsored an Alumni Picnic at South Lynn, Michigan and those present indicated a day of relaxation and fun.

Plans for the future include a cocktail party for members and wives as well as our annual Communion Breakfast and a dinner in honor of Fr. Maxwell on the occasion of his next visit.

At our last meeting we learned of many more B. C. alumni in the Detroit area. Paul Woods '52, Al Owens '53, and Walter Torphy '51 all with Ford Motor Company. Al Ferguson '42, Dick Glossa '50, Henri '39 and Bill Valade, '37, to mention only a few.

The Club would appreciate any alumni in the area contacting the Secretary, John Carley at 8117 Freda Avenue, Detroit 4, Michigan (phone We. 5-3200) or at Mercury Division, Ford Motor Company in order to increase our active membership. See you at the 'Cross' game."

Eastern Middlesex

As this issue goes to press Club officers are planning a Sports Night for November. The Annual Dinner will be held in February. Officers for the 1955-56 season are: Paul A. Good, '43, Reading, president; James A. McAvoy, L'51, Melrose, vice-president; Charles Bacigalupo, '50, Reading, secretary, and George O'Brien, '40, Wakefield, treasurer.

Lawrence

The fall gathering of Club members is planned for the near future according to president Edward L. Lanigan, '43. Due to the fine response to the type meeting held last January when Coach Holovak was the speaker, it is planned to have a program along the same general lines—a stag smoker with buffet lunch.

Miami

A large delegation of Alumni led by club president Joseph Delaney, '44, were on hand at the airport to meet the football team arriving in Florida for the B. C. - Miami game in November 4.

A feature of the week-end entertainment enjoyed by Florida and Boston Alumni and their friends was a cocktail party held at the home of Mayor and Mrs. Jack Beatty, '41 in Bal Harbour. Father Rector, alumni president Ed Gallagher, Jr., and Coach Holovak were among the guests present.

New York

Up to date information on the Club activities are outlined in the latest "press release" forwarded by president Frank Donelan, '48.

The first meeting of the Boston College Club of New York was held October 6th at the Midston House. It was a most enjoyable and interesting evening. Our guest speaker, Reverend Daniel Linehan S.J. '27, Director of the Weston Observatory, Weston, Massachusetts, was overwhelmingly received. He lectured and showed slides of his expedition to the Magnetic North Pole as well as his journey to the South Polar regions with the U. S. Navy's "Atka" expedition.

We would like to remind all that the next function of the Club will be Thursday night, December 1st, when Mike Holovak will be our guest with the Boston College-Holy Cross football game pictures.

The Calendar for the Club is as follows: Jan. 6th—Boston College Basketball game with the New York Athletic Club, to be followed by a reception for the team; Mar. 11th—Laetare Sunday Corporate Communion; May 10th—Rector's Reception.

A notice that the 1955-1956 dues are now payable has been sent to all members. The prompt and loyal support shown from the request has been most gratifying. All who have not taken heed to our call, please make your check payable to the Boston College Club of New York and send today to: Dan W. Fay, Treasurer, '50, 43 Fern Street, New Rochelle, New York.

We also would ask all men who have just arrived in the New York City area and those whose addresses are obsolete, to please notify Francis X. J. Donelan, '48, 43 Fern Street, New Rochelle, New York.

Philadelphia

At a late September meeting president Paul Lambert, '44, Leo P. Moran, '30, Leo Landry, '39, and John Delorey, '50, discussed a program of activities for the coming season. On the agenda are a Sports Night, card party, annual Communion Breakfast on Laetare Sunday, and a picnic in the Spring.

Springfield

John J. Phelan, president of the Western Massachusetts Chapter of the Boston College Alumni Association, announced the program for the year.

Activities for the current season began on Friday night, Oct. 21 when B. C. alumni, their wives and friends joined the Holy Cross Alumni Club for a cocktail party at the University Club.

Treasurer John J. Bradley has been named chairman of arrangements for the football caravan which has as its goal the Boston College and Holy Cross game at Fenway Park Saturday, Nov. 26. Plans include a supper dance after the game, at Alumni Hall on the Heights where the general alumni celebration will take place. A special section will be reserved at the game so that the Springfield party may sit together.

A dinner dance is to be held during the Christmastide season with Atty. Edward R. Gallagher '45, assigned to form his committee and work out the arrangements. The date and place is to be announced later.

It is the hope of the officers to be able to present a Sports Night during March when Football Coach Mike Holovak will be the guest of the chapter to show football movies. Walter R. Graham, '22 has been designated as chairman of the Sports Night.

The Communion breakfast, a yearly feature as a father-and-son gathering, will take place during April. Henry J. Fitzpatrick, '19 of Holyoke and John Loughman, '32 of this city have been appointed co-chairmen. The final event of the year now contemplated is a family clambake at one of the nearby resorts during June.

Secretary Rossi has already opened his campaign for funds for the Philip J. Callen Scholarship which is to be awarded next year to a deserving student from this area. The scholarship was established as a testimonial to Philip J. Callan, '25 formerly of this city, who was president of the chapter for eight years until his work moved him to the Boston office of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. It is Secretary Rossi's plan to solicit each member of the chapter in order to get the fund started in a healthy condition.

San Francisco

President Edward A. Hogan, Jr., '30 writes:

"The news from San Francisco is sad. Our fellow alumnus and chaplain passed away in his sleep early in the morning of October 2. Father Joseph F. Rock, S. J. '32 was Professor of Philosophy at the University of San Francisco and an enthusiastic worker in our alumni affairs during the past ten years. Through his good influence many of our activities were centered around the University—the Jesuit college in San Francisco.

Many of his classmates will remember that he moved to California shortly after his graduation from the college in order to join the California Province of the Society of Jesus. Some part of his training was given at Weston College and he was ordained there in 1945.

He has been chronically ill for several years. In spite of pain and suffering he never lost his cheerfulness or his enthusiasm for Boston College. He was the friend of every family with Boston ties and was the center of all communications among them. Father Joe was a source of fine Christian example and shared the joys and sorrows of everyone in our group. I am sure that, with us, the alumni will regret his passing and will pray for his heavenly joy.

Except to report that the entire membership and their families attended the final rites, there is no news from San Francisco."

Washington, D. C.

Officers of the Washington club for the coming year are President, Charles F. B. McAleer, '44; Vice President, Henry G. Beauregard, '36; and Secretary-Treasurer, Anthony J. Perry, '26. On October 13, 1955 a box-supper was held under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Donelan, '38. Club talent provided the entertainment. The monthly luncheons are held on the last Monday of each month 12:30 P.M. at the Cock 'N' Bull restaurant 1313 E St. N. W. The Cock 'N' Bull is owned and operated by John Murphy, '44. Communications should be addressed to Anthony J. Perry, Hotel Dupont Plaza, Conn. Ave. N. W. Washington, D. C.

West Roxbury

Committees are now being appointed to insure a full program for the Club. Planned are a lecture, Saturday party at Alumni Hall, Communion Breakfast, and one or two other activities. Club members are asked to contact president Nat Hasenfus, '22 and offer suggestions.

Warm Welcome Mat

"The best B. C. team I've seen in my nine years in Boston," said Buff Donelli.

"My teams seem to start slow and pick up steam near the season's end. This one is no exception", said Mike Holovak.

Put these remarks under the crystal ball when you figure the Cross game, and — although I may be prejudiced — it looks like a warm welcome for the Crusaders. (By now you may know the final outcome.)

Of course anyone who tries to call that game from past records is crazy. But the fact is that since the second quarter of the Miami game, Mike's warriors have been hotter than firecrackers. In that heartbreaker (7-14), B. C. controlled the ball twice as often as the Hurricanes. They owned the Miami real estate between 50-yard and goal-line: Eight times they were close, but no cigar—the ninth paid off on a Donlan to DeSilva pass. Wrote a Miami sportswriter, "Except for one other fruitless first period thrust, the Hurricanes took a beating on the field, in the statistics, and in their pride."

O, well. B. U. (40-12) succumbed quicker, setting up Donelli's generous praise of his team's conquerors. Donlan starred, and Petrarca, DeSilva, Tom Joe Sullivan, Gagliardi and Cousineau all had a hand in the scoring. The line—particularly John Miller, Dick Myles, Tino Bertolini and ends Dick Lucas and Dick Gagliardi—charged like demons as long as they were around. Which wasn't too long. Mike cleared his bench of 36 players to give 'em all a chance—and keep the score decent.

So it's a warm welcome mat spread for the Crusaders. Could call it a hot-foot!

Season's record to date: B.C. 27-Brandeis 0; B.C. 28-Villanova 14; B.C. 23-Detroit 0; B.C. 13-Marquette 13; B.C. 12-Xavier 19; B.C. 7-Miami 14, and B.C. 40-B.U. 12.

Miller's Movies in Bed

Big clusters of Alumni have been enjoying, week after week, Mike Holovak's showings of the previous Saturday's game. No one though has enjoyed them half as much as the baseball team's left fielder Eddie Miller. He's had a private showing every week personally conducted by Mike himself. Polio hit him last summer: he's been in the So. Huntington's Veterans' Hospital ever since. So out go the movies to him. He has his fingers crossed that the doctors will let him see the Cross game live. Wish him luck.

Basketball's Coming...

Coach Dino Martin looks for a big improvement over last year's so-so basketball season (8-18). Dick Skeffington with 452 points last year—to set a new season high—is back. He's got his eye on Tony Daukas' 1086 points in varsity competition, could likely be the second B.C. player in history to top 1000 points. Other veterans include Captain Pat Cahill, Dick Dunn, Jim Brosnahan, Leo Power, Stan Kieon and Paul McAdams. And Dino has several sophomores that look especially good.

...And So's Hockey

Only 3 seniors graduate from Snooks Kelley's puck-chasers, so he's a happy man. Back to the wars came Dick Gagliardi, Don Fox, Captain Ed Carroll and a flock of football players like Billy Donlan and Jim Tiernan. The season opens with Tufts, Dec. 6.

B. C. Varsity Club

A fine program of activities has been planned for the coming season. The showing of the previous week's football game film on Wednesday evenings at Alumni Hall has been well attended. On November 2, the Club was host to its athletes of the past 15 years, and welcomed into membership the war year teams. November 11 was designated as Varsity Reunion Day. After the B.C.-H.C. freshman football game members met at Alumni Hall.

An invitation is extended to all "B" men to take an active part in the Club activities.

The life of a football player is hard! Here seven of e poor slaves work out at the Miami practice area.ough, no? Left to right, Bob Poskus, center; Vin St. erre, guard; Charlie Zilinski, manager; Tony Quinti- ni, guard; Frank Meehan, guard; Joe Hines, tackle;ick Gagliardi, end.

Annual Dinner for Football Team

The B.C. Varsity Club Dinner to honor the football team will be held at the Hotel Statler on Sunday, January 8, 1956. A fine program is being planned by the general chairman Nathaniel J. Hasenfus, '22. Tickets may be obtained from Thomas F. Cavanaugh, '26, chairman, John D. Martin, '29, treasurer, William J. Flynn, '39, Alumni secretary, or any of the Committee. Address reservations to Alumni Hall.

The Jack Ryder Track Club

The annual memorial mass of the Jack Ryder Track Club was held at St. Mary's Chapel, Boston College Sunday morning November 20, 1956, with breakfast at Alumni Hall. Pat Lochiatto, '55 served as chairman Harold Connolly '54 recently returned from a most successful track tour was guest speaker.

Presentation of the Annual Jack Ryder Track Club awards was made to Pat Lochiatto, captain of last year's squad for outstanding performance and to John Murphy '57, the member showing the greatest improvement.

A special TRACK NIGHT will be held at Alumni Hall in conjunction with the annual track meeting for which notice will be mailed to members. Special track film will be shown by Coach Bill Gilligan and Commander Ralph Colson in the Varsity Room at Alumni Hall which will serve as our new headquarters. The club's officers include: Joseph E. Ingoldsby '27, president; William P. Gilligan '40, vice-president; Benedict T. Hines '37, secretary; and Thomas F. Cavanaugh '26, treasurer.

Picture by Daniel Sheehan, Boston Post

Hal Connolly, '54 made the papers recently by exchanging correspondence (including a picture of the B.U. campus), with the Russian hammer world title-holder. Hal, whose U.S. record is 209'7", has his eye on the Russian's world mark of 211'8", come the Olympics game next year. The Bill Gilligan-coached star expects his big chance then to topple his Russian friend.

Home to its permanent perch before the Tower Building comes the Alumni Eagle. Previously in front of Alumni Hall, this handsome bronze bird — gift of the Larz Anderson Estate in 1954 — now soars on a 30-foot marble shaft.

The Baron of Southwell Hall

Maybe it's irreverent, but you can't blame the dormitory students of Southwell Hall. When their prefect sets out for a walk, he favors a black Homburg and a cane. Add to these aristocratic appurtenances a dignified carriage of his 6 feet and 200 pounds, a Teutonic cast of countenance, a Prussian name, and a fluent command of German. What else could they dub him but "The Baron"?

Only behind his back, of course. His Southwell charges are well aware that the Prefect of Southwell Hall is also chairman of the Philosophy department, an august position which carries awesome powers over every student at B. C. So the "Baron", face to face, remains Father Frederick J. Adelmann, S.J.

Father Adelmann, '37, chuckles at the title, himself. ("I only learned to speak German six years ago!") and prefers to talk about how well the present crop of B. C. students does in his courses. We were on this subject in Father Adelmann's tiny office in the Tower Bldg. when a soph came in with a make-up final exam in Logic. It was a stiff one: Three pages full of perverse syllogisms to be untangled. (Sample: All good soldiers obey General Eisenhower. But Mrs. Eisenhower obeys the General. Therefore Mrs. Eisenhower is a good soldier.)

I watched while Father Adelmann ran through the first page. "Good job", he said. "Maybe it's because Philosophy is so far removed from their regular run of courses. These CBA boys take to it, show up very well indeed. And oddly enough they like Metaphysics — of all things — best of all. Particularly the proofs of the existence of God. Discussion gets really lively."

Father Adelmann loves his main work, teaching. And except for a brief excursion into science ("I got a real charge from a course in Physics back in '44 for the Army Service Training Program. I leaned on a high-voltage machine in the lab once, and almost electrocuted myself."), Philosophy has been his field. He took his master's at B. C. in '42, won his doctorate on "The Notion of the Will of St. John Damascene" at St. Louis University in '54. In between he taught at B. C., was ordained in 1948, studied in Germany in 1949.

"I'll never forget '49, my tertianship (the year after ordination in the Jesuit discipline). I was sent to Munich to learn German along with my studies in Ascetic Theology. Six days a week I slaved, literally. When I wasn't cramming I was serving meals, wiping dishes, washing floors — every Jesuit remembers this year! But Sunday offered a grand change of pace. I played "parish priest" to the Army Command families in my quarter. Enjoyed every minute, Sundays anyhow."

I went back to the 1937 Sub Turri to see how well they "predicted" the future Father "Fred" Adelmann. When the editor alliteratively exclaimed, "Essence of energy and enthusiasm . . . !" he struck off the present Philosophy Chairman beautifully. But when he added, ". . . has a fondness for high brown shoes," O, how the present Father "Baron" Adelmann must wince.

NEWS FROM THE CLASSES

'11 WILLIAM D. MURPHY

77 Waban Hill Road North,
Chestnut Hill

The annual Class reunion and dinner was a most enjoyable affair held at Alumni Hall on Friday, November 11. It was a pleasure to see several classmates whom we have not met since last year's get-together.

Our congratulations to Rt. Rev. Thomas A. Flynn recently elevated to the ranks of monsignori. He is pastor of St. Mary's Parish, Waltham.

Classmates who have not yet contributed to the 1955 Alumni Fund are urged to do so in order that we may keep up with our good record set last year.

Classmates welcome the news that Rt. Rev. Thomas F. Garrity, pastor of St. Polycarp's Parish, Somerville, has been named a domestic prelate by the Holy Father.

'14 JOHN S. KEOHANE

1147 Tremont St., Boston

Congratulations to Ed Sullivan on receiving the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at the Academic Convocation marking the opening of Campion Hall, the School of Education on November 1.

On the evening of November 1 the class dinner was held at the Statler Hotel and was very successful. Outstanding entertainers were Monsignor Tim Gleason, Dr. Ed Sullivan and Father Joe Busam, S.J., from Holy Cross making his first appearance in many years. Also outstanding was the ebullient John Hogan from Lawrence, one of the local "intellectuals" of that school system.

Father Tom Heagney related his experiences of his recent European trip which included visits to Rome and Ireland.

Bishop MacKenzie preached the sermon at the Fifteenth Annual Red Mass on October 1, at St. Ignatius Church, celebrated annually for the legal profession. He was the preacher also at the initial Red Mass held at the Cathedral, Portland, Maine, October 9.

Fr. John Joyce's nephew, Fr. Charles J. Dunn, S.J., was ordained at Weston College and said his first Mass June 2. Bishop Eric presided. Fr. Joyce was Arch-Priest with Monsignor Gleason, chaplain to the Bishop.

Tom O'Hare's nephew, Rev. Francis C. O'Hare was appointed assistant superior of Casa Santa Maria, graduate department, North American College in Rome where he was ordained in 1951.

Attorney Jim Brennan's son, Thomas, '55, was captain of the Ski and Sailing teams, "Distinguished Military Student" in his Senior Year and also a member of the Gold-Key Society. He is indeed a worthy son of a worthy sire.

Died: August 2 at California, Al Shaughnessy; August 23, Fr. Jim Welch, Pastor of St. Philip's Church, Boston; September 2, Dr. Thomas J. Reid's mother at East Weymouth; September 5, Jim Dunbar's daughter, Collette, (Regis '45) of polio. May they rest in peace!

Fr. Pat Dawson is recuperating at St. Elizabeth's Hospital after a fractured hip operation. His niece, Helen King, is a Senior in the School of Education.

Congratulations and best wishes to Monsignor Tim Gleason, Pastor of St. Anthony's Church, Allston, on his new honors.

Fr. Tom Murphy, Pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Belmont, who has returned to the rectory after a siege of illness, reports satisfactory progress.

Married: June 20 at St. Barnabas' Church, North Haven, (Conn.), John Keohane's son, Thomas (Fifth Marines in World War II) and Marjorie Ann Hill of Pittsburgh; July 2, Marie Keohane, a teacher in the Milton Schools and Laurence Finnegan of Newton (B. U. '56); August 6, Lieut. Frank X. Keohane, U.S.A., stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas and Ellen H. Dunphy of Belmont, at St. Joseph's Church.

Rev. George P. Wiseman has been appointed pastor of Blessed Sacrament Church, Cambridge. He is the former pastor of St. Michael's, Hudson.

The sympathy of the Class is extended to the wife and family of John J. Curtin of Medford. John died October 31.

'16 JAMES L. O'BRIEN

41 Pond Circle, Jamaica Plain

There was a fine article on the life of our Father Casey in the Pilot of Sept. 26.

Congratulations to Father McNulty on his elevation to the rank of Monsignor.

Kindly remember in your prayers the souls of Bishop Feeney and Father Edwin Walsh.

Frank Roche is our class president for our 40th Anniversary which occurs next June.

Monsignor Dalton has recently erected on Bird Street, Dorchester, a beautiful shrine to Our Lady of Fatima. If you are in the neighborhood, plan to visit it.

Dr. Roy Heffernan has moved to 1057 Brush Hill Road, Milton.

Pat Donovan recently retired from the Boston schools. He is now residing at 52 Hallowell Street, Mattapan.

Father William E. Kerrigan, Pastor of St. Michael Church, Bedford, passed away suddenly at the home of his brother in Belmont on June 26th. He is remembered for his activities in debating and as the president of the class in junior year. Assisting at the funeral Mass were Fr. John F. Welsh and Fr. Bert Shea. The latter was the Eulogist.

Fr. John Flynn, son of our John Flynn was the thurifer. Present at the Mass were Msgr. William McCarthy, Msgr. William Reilly, Fr. Frank Murphy, Bill Reid, Bill Reardon and Jack Doyle. The sincere sympathy of the class is extended to the members of his family. May his soul rest in peace.

Jim Kelley, has recently been in St. John's Hospital, Lowell. We have no definite news but sincerely hope there is nothing serious.

Jack Doyle, reports that son, Jack, navy lieutenant, is out of service.

Msgr. Bill Reilly, Pastor of St. Agnes Church, Reading, suffered the loss of his brother, Joseph, Captain on the Watertown Police Dep't, in August. The members of the class join in extending sympathy to the family in their bereavement.

Bill Reid, suffered the loss of his mother, Mrs. Winifred Reid of East Weymouth, aged 94, in August. Several members of the class were at the wake and attended the Funeral Mass. Sincere sympathy of the class is extended to the Reid family.

Frank Limont reports that hurricane Diane caused but slight damage to his home in Beckett but considerable inconvenience to his home life. His golf game is still holding up. Since we last heard from him six grandchildren have been added to the family.

Fr. Frank Caffrey, M. M. is helping in the production of "Sunday in Hollywood", a series of radio shows to be released this Fall, starring top personalities of the entertainment world and sponsored by the Maryknoll Fathers. "Sunday in Hollywood" follows the interview format in which Fr. Caffrey interviews the stars whom he knows intimately. The cast includes Bing Crosby, Loretta Young, Danny Thomas, Joe E. Brown, Leo McCarey, Pat O'Brien, Jimmy Gleason, Dennis Day, George Murphy and a host of others. Watch for this.

The marriage of Anne Elizabeth Shea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Shea of East Walpole and Popponesset, to Joseph Philip Mitchell, B. C. '52, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Mitchell, of West Roxbury, took place recently in St. Theresa's Church, West Roxbury. Reverend George A. Scully, uncle of the bride officiated and Rev. William H. Harrington, was among the guests.

Fr. "Joe" Robinson pastor of St. Mary's Church, Brookline, was recently made Monsignor "Joe". Prior to his present assignment in Brookline, he had been a professor at Emmanuel College.

The deep sympathy of the entire class goes out to our Bill Walsh and his family on the sudden death of his daughter. Her beautiful soul has gone back to God.

Our congratulations to Rev. William H. Harrington who is now the pastor of Holy Name Parish, the largest in the Fall River diocese.

Few of us ever break into the press. Would you kindly send me an item or two about yourself, your children or your grandchildren—for use in future class notes?

Last July, Archbishop Cushing announced that the Holy Father had designated eleven priests of the Archdiocese to the rank of Domestic Prelate with the title of Right Reverend Monsignor. One of those honored was Very Rev. LeRoy V. Cooney, pastor of St. Colman's, Brockton.

Rev. Cletus Mulloy, C.P., of St. Gabriel's Monastery, Brighton, was the guest speaker for October on the "Hour of the Crucified," over WVDA Sundays at 3 p.m. His theme was "Design for Sanctity." It was a national network broadcast and was also beamed throughout the world by the Armed Forces Radio.

Rev. Edmund J. Haynes attended the Eucharistic Congress in Rio de Janeiro last summer.

The sympathy of the Class is extended to Edwin Gallagher on the death of his wife; to Charlie Coyle, whose brother, Rev. James A. Coyle, pastor of Holy Name Church, Fall River, passed away in July.

We also extend our sympathy to Rev. Thomas E. O'Laor, S.J., chaplain of the Boston City Hospital, whose mother passed away last August.

John Donahue, editor of "Columbia," national monthly magazine of the Knights of Columbus, is a director of the Catholic Press Association of the United States. Recently, John was the principal speaker at the annual Communion Breakfast of the Men's Club of the Church of the Holy Infant, Orange, Connecticut.

Ed Foy's son, Richard, CBA, '54, is stationed with the First Finance Disbursing Section at the Inchon Replacement Depot.

Our condolences to the family of our former classmate Ralph A. J. Murphy of Cambridge. Ralph died suddenly on June 11.

Rev. Jeremiah Moriarty is now the pastor of St. Cecilia's Parish, Ashland.

Gerry Deeley's nephew, Dick Casey an All-Scholastic from Boston Latin, is at the Heights and is a promising candidate for Wally Boudreau's freshman team. Gerry was a good end himself on Frank Morrissey's 1918 and Frank Cavanaugh's 1919 squads. Monsignor Jimmy Doyle, Pastor of St. Patrick's in Roxbury, visited the shrine of Our Lady of Knock in Ireland in August. The Globe photograph of him and his sister Anna, brought back to mind the picture of the Winter Carnival at the Heights on P 179 of the 1922 Sub Turri . . . Walter Graham is Sunday Editor on the most flourishing newspaper in Springfield . . . Ed Madder is the new Deputy Grand Knight of Pere Marquette Council, K. of C. . . Rev. Frank Morrissey has taken over his duties as Pastor of St. Mary's in Bath, Maine, our family's summer parish, where I met him several times in September. He is in splendid health and is making great strides in his new parish already. He reports that he had two pleasant hours with Msgr. Tom Riley recently. One of his parishioners is John O'Callaghan, a pitcher at B.C. High in 1918. John is an uncle of Rev. Gerry O'Callaghan, S.J. of B.C. football and hockey fame . . . The marriage of the daughter of Joe Bower was a social event of note in Wakefield . . . My son, Walter, '55, is a naval officer candidate at Newport.

The class mourns the passing of the beloved Henry Smith, one of its most loyal members who died in August after a life of service to Church and State. . . . R. I. P.

The Boston College Alumni Fund would greatly appreciate hearing from those members of the class who have not as yet contributed in 1955. The Fund is still in high gear and will receive contributions for several weeks to come. We would particularly like to hear from that large sector of 1923 that has never remembered financially its Alma Mater over three decades. The amount of your contribution is entirely personal, but anything will show us that you still have a warm spot in your hearts for the "Towers on the Heights".

Annelene Marie Comerford, daughter of our illustrious "Tony" was joined in holy wedlock to James Henry Walsh, Lieutenant, Junior Grade, United States Naval Reserve, Saturday, October 8th in St. Ignatius Church, Chestnut Hill. Classmates at the beautiful and impressive ceremony were Cecil McGoldrick and Scriptor.

Our best wishes to Father Harold F. McDermott, who was recently named pastor of St. Michael's Church, Bedford. A veteran of World Wars I and II, Father Harold spent eight years in St. Charles', Woburn before leaving to enter the United States Army as Chaplain. He moved up to a captaincy, and after his discharge, he again entered the service of Uncle Sam, administering to the unfortunate at Bedford Hospital. Father McDermott is the eldest member of 1923, followed by "Scriptor" and both came from St. Mary's of the Annunciation, Cambridge.

While congratulations are in order let us extend ours to the Rev. Ladislaus A. Ciesinski (Cy) ex '23, who after many years as pastor of the Polish Church in Ipswich, has been named pastor of St. Michael's Church, Lynn. Although unable to appear at many of our class gatherings, Father Ciesinski has always been a loyal and devoted son of Boston College.

Another ex '23 classmate, the Rev. Matthew Hale, S.J., director of the Sacred Heart program, recently celebrated a Sunday televised Mass over WNAC-TV, Channel 7. The commentator was the Rev. Walter L. Flaherty, '34.

Glad to see Tim Tully at Boston Latin School as assistant head of the English Department. This may not be the official title, but between Gordon Irons, '21, also a B. C. graduate of distinction, and Tim, the English Department of this great and historic boys' school will be capably handled.

"Scriptor" humbly requests the prayers of his classmates for the repose of the soul of his brother, Charles E. of Brookline, who passed away suddenly on June 30th, — the last of the Fords except your secretary and reporter. Requiescat in Pace.

'24 ANTHONY E. LeBLANC

45 Maynard Street, Arlington

On June 2 an informal reception was held at Alumni Hall with 30 couples in attendance. The affair was preceded by Benediction at St. Mary's Hall celebrated by Monsignor George Dowd.

Under the leadership of John P. Sullivan the committee carried out a complete program—food, dancing, entertainment—all present had a most enjoyable evening.

Congratulations to Rev. John F. Egan who celebrated his 25th Anniversary of ordination on August 7. Father Egan, a native of South Boston, spent 19 years as a Trappist until his health forced him to give up the strenuous life in his chosen order and he went into mission work in Utah. He returned East three years ago and was assigned to St. Mary's Parish, Pittsfield, where he is now stationed.

John P. Sullivan has been appointed by President Eisenhower to the Historic Sites of Boston Committee.

'25 EDWARD J. O'LEARY

22 Bailey Road, Arlington 74

Sincere congratulations to classmate Rev. Timothy M. Howard on his recent promotion to the pastorate of Holy Family Church in Duxbury, Mass. Most of Father Tim's priestly life was spent in St. Charles Church, Waltham as a curate prior to his being named pastor in Duxbury.

Many classmates will recall the arduous task which confronted the Rev. George Hanlon, S.J. when he tried to teach French to the freshman class of 1921-22. It was with keen pleasure that we noted that the good Father Hanlon survived the ordeal to celebrate last October his fiftieth anniversary as a member of the Jesuit Order. At the Jubilee Mass in his honor the Archbishop presided and extolled the virtues of this fine priest and gentleman.

Felicitations to Jerry Grey on his recent promotion to Director of Marketing and Media for the well-known advertising firm of H. H. Humphrey, Alley & Richards, Inc. of Boston.

Gene Giroux calls to our attention that many classmates have still to be heard from in the Alumni Loyalty Fund Campaign. In fact Gene points out that several of the class who had responded promptly and generously last year are now among the missing. It takes but a minute to write a check and another minute to post it—so let Gene hear from you as soon as possible.

'26 WILLIAM J. CUNNINGHAM

40 Tennyson St., W. Roxbury

Again, we announce with great regret the death of another of our classmates. It really is getting late. Gus Keefe died early in July, after a very short illness. He was married to the sister of Fr. Jack Keohane, the former great tackle under Cav. Gus had spent practically all his life at the College, teaching Latin and Greek. Recquiescat in pace.

Face up to it, men. It'll be thirty years this coming June. Tentative plans call for President Art Gorman to meet with an executive committee for a few plans. Several of the fellows would like to see a family outing, over and above our annual stag affair. If you have ideas, and there aren't many things we can do to celebrate, let's hear about them at the annual dinner. We're planning to hold it a bit earlier than we have been lately, so that we can get rolling.

Speaking of outings, we can report a bit more about the shindig we had at Wentworth by the Sea last June. The hotel was very comfortable, and they highlighted our stay with a big lobster dinner on the beach that Saturday. Dorsey was seen destroying three lobsters. The naval captain of the class, Tom Herlihy, had had us as his guests on a guided tour of the Navy Rehabilitation Center (prison, to you) at Portsmouth that morning. Unusually interesting.

The golf was fun, too, although Charlie Schroeder would still be trying to get over the water hole if he hadn't been forcibly dragged away by Tom Cavanaugh. We hope that the same gang of men will be together for another one next year. It has almost reached the stage where we don't want any else to come! However, we might consider your application.

Murray Brown chided me for announcing earlier that he was moving to Connecticut. Turns out that we had the right dope after all. His firm is sending him to New York, and he has bought in Stamford. His other daughter was married in September, and his only son is now a student at Notre Dame.

Got a chuckle out of a story about Frank Carney in a Cambridge paper to the effect that his family was the "most graduating" family in Cambridge. Within a month, every one of the five members received either a degree or a diploma. Frank is Principal of the Roberts Grammar School and is Dean of the Archbishop Cushing School of Theology for the Laity. His daughter Patricia, recently graduated from Regis, announced her engagement to Thomas McDonald. Catherine completed work at Matignon with honors, and young Frank got an eight year excellence award from his dad's school. Hope that last one wasn't bagged. The Carneys are a credit.

Fr. Walter Bruce McCracken was recently transferred from St. Angela's in Mattapan. Speaking of the clergy, remember "Goose" Dowd? Well, the Rev. Edward F. Dowd has been appointed Assistant to the Vice Rector of the Catholic University in Washington. A tip of the caubeen to Ray Scott for that one. Met Tony Perry at the Brandeis game, in the wet. He was on from Washington for the week. The following Monday we spent a very pleasant evening at Charlie Schroeders. Tony has certainly been around.

My own daughter and five months old grandson are in Athens, Georgia, where her husband is doing further work for the Navy at the University of Georgia. What's doing with your family? You tell me; I'll write about it.

See you at Alumni Hall at the annual dinner. We'll get notices to you.

Bill Ohrenberger, assistant superintendent of the Boston schools.

Rev. Henry B. Pender has been appointed pastor of the Sacred Heart Church in Lubec, Maine. Father was formerly chaplain of the Mercy Hospital in Portland.

The Class extends its sympathy and prayers to classmate John Higgins whose father recently died.

Fr. John Comber, Maryknoll missioner, is now spreading the Gospel in South America.

Brother Tom Heffernan is still doing his usual excellent job of editing the bulletin for the Catholic Alumni of Boston.

Please send news of yourself, your 1927 friends, and families to your correspondent at the above address.

'28 LLOYD L. DOYLE 46 Hecla Street, Dorchester

The sympathy of the class is extended to the families of two of our classmates, William Di Marzio and Gerald Houghton. Bill died on September 1, and Gerald died the latter part of September.

Members of the class attended both funerals, Bill's at St. Ann's, Readville, and Gerald's at St. Charles', Woburn.

Sympathy is also extended to Charles Owen Dooley and William Dacey on the deaths of their mothers.

Rev. Francis G. Shea—known as the jovial priest—is the new pastor of St. Catherine's Parish, Charlestown.

The daughter of Dr. Robert Donovan, Elizabeth, has entered the Convent of Holy Cross in Notre Dame, Indiana.

Frank Phelan, Real Estate and Insurance tycoon of Harvard Square, was recently elected president of the Cambridge Chamber of Commerce; a high K. of C. honor was given John W. McDevitt—named to the Supreme Board of Directors; Dan Driscoll is chairman of the Hynes for Mayor Citizens' Committee; John Cahill was made chairman of the Community Red Feather Drive in Stoneham; Dick Morrissey has been appointed supervisor of the Incorporated Charities Division, State Dept. of Public Welfare.

Victor Newton's son has entered the Jesuit Novitiate at Shadowbrook.

Charles Owen Dooley, a former assistant attorney-general under Anthony Julian, '25, has opened a law office in the Quincy Savings Bank Building, Quincy Square.

A new honor for Dr. John Andosca—he has been elected president of the American College of Chest Physicians, New England States Chapter; Maurice Downey was made Director of Vocational Guidance for the Boston Public Schools as of September 1.

Dan Driscoll will be getting in touch with you.

Arrangements will be made soon for a class reunion and a class communion breakfast. I want volunteers for the committees and also some suggestions. It takes organization and cooperation to put over these activities, so let me hear from you.

Chaunce Gabriel Mullen has opened an office on Harvard Street, Allston. He and Charlie Murphy have joined in the Real Estate and Insurance business.

The class agent, Dan Driscoll, and his assistants are still plugging away to get the Class of 1928 up with the leaders in the Alumni Fund drive. Some of our successful members have failed to respond.

P.S. A thought for today—"Relax and take it easy".

'29 JOHN J. SPENCER 527 Broadway, South Boston

Short notes this issue. Had hoped to pick up some at the Homecoming Game but was able to discern only Attorney John Mahoney and Bill LaFay beneath the umbrellas, ponchos and rain gear which enveloped the hardy souls in attendance.

Attorney Henry Leen recently quoted in the papers with a strong statement on a divisive demonstration against a local educational institution.

Met Ed O'Brien at a tea party—that's what I said, tea—at Holy Cross Academy. Parents of seniors were being greeted. Ed's Ellen and your correspondent's oldest daughter, Judith, are members of the graduating class at the beautiful suburban school.

'30 JOHN F. DWYER 45 Belvoir Road, Milton

On Friday, September 23 at Alumni Hall a group of 40 classmates and wives enjoyed moving pictures taken on Family Day and Alumni Day by John Convery, Fred Lyons and Tom Kelly.

Congratulations to John Gillooly whose sports article "Golf by Braille", a story of the U. S. Golf Championship for the Blind at Wachusett Country Club at Worcester last July was adjudged by reviewers to be the best news story of 1954 and was included in the book "Greatest Sports Stories of 1954" published by E. P. Dutton.

Rev. Eugene P. Burns, S.J., received his missionary assignment to Beirut, Lebanon from Archbishop Cushing early in August in departure ceremonies at St. Ignatius Church.

We have fulfilled 75% of our 25th anniversary pledge to Alma Mater. We wish to urge those who made divided payments to complete them by December 1 to allow us to report 100% accomplishment of our goal. The splendid cooperation of all during our Silver Anniversary year made it an outstanding one in the annals of the College.

With sorrow we report the loss of two classmates who died during the week of October 9. John M. Cody, a teacher in Cambridge was a polio victim. Dr. Lawrence G. Mullen succumbed to a heart attack. Spiritual enrollments of our deceased classmates have been arranged as an expression of our sympathy.

'31 JOHN P. BARRY 370 Chestnut Hill Avenue, Brookline

During the late heat wave called Summer a steering committee of the Class under the leadership of co-Chairmen Msgr. Flanigan and Bill Coleman has hammered out a program for our 25th Anniversary Year. On September 27 at Alumni Hall this program was submitted to an open meeting of the entire class and approved. The committees for these events were announced, as follows:

Ladies' Night: Ted Cass, Al Fitzgerald, Paul LaJoie, John Flavin, Jack Gill and Fred Sullivan.

Stag Dinner: John Walsh, Jack Chisholm, Larry Healey, Fr. Arthur Norton and Charlie McCarthy, John Temple and John Hart.

Communion Breakfast: Frs. Meehan, Norton, Dolan and Linehan.

Field Day: "Jopey" Shea, Jack Gill, Tom Meagher, John Temple, Art Conway and Charlie Saia.

Outing: Charlie McCarthy, Larry Healey, Charlie Hayes, Ed Devaney, George Evans, George O'Connell, Joe Sullivan and Charlie Nolan.

Alumni Day: Bud Gorman, Bart Welch, Art Conway, Joe Sullivan, Ed Devaney, John Shork, Larry Healey and Ed Butters.

You have all received Msgr. Flanigan's letter telling that he has received contributions to the class gift which amount to about $2,000! An excellent beginning! Whether you give a lump sum or in dribs and drabs, give what you can, and send it to the Monsignor at St. Sebastian's so that the class gift may be made as a concrete offering on Alumni Day.

George O'Connell will be class representative at the pre-Holy Cross game smoker, at Alumni Hall.

Bishop Wright was one of the leading speakers at the Holy Name Convention in Pittsburgh. He is Honorary Chairman of the Anniversary Year.

The sympathy of the class is extended to Tom Crosby on the loss of his mother. Fr. Jim Larkin who looked so fine on Alumni Day has not been too well but he is making good progress at the Boston Sanatorium. Dr. "Bud" Gorman is at the Cambridge City Hospital with a broken hip. John Murray is also ill at the same hospital.

Ted Cass's daughter, Jane, has practically entirely recovered from a bout with polio. We wish a speedy and complete recovery to all.

The Tom Crosbys are receiving congratulations on the birth of Kathleen L. on July 6.

John Flavin is back in Boston and is living in Medford.

Fr. Tom Griffin, former treasurer of the diocesan college at Erie, Pa., now shares the honor of the pastorate with another classmate, Fr. Tom Crowell in the same diocese.

Fr. Ed. Cheney, S.J., has started a new school building in his Jamaica mission.

John Barrett, with the VA in Washington, and his charming wife Anna entertained John Barry at their home in Silver Spring, Md., on the latter's return from a vacation trip to the Coast.

Did you read the article in the Sunday "Globe" in July telling of Comdr. Charlie Mullins' experiences dealing with war-nerves cases as Head of the Psychiatry Department, U.S. Naval Hospital, Camp Pendleton, California?

Felix Doherty's play about Francis Thompson, "Song Out of Sorrow" will open the fifteenth season of the famous Blackfriars' Guild in New York on October 24.

Charlie Brooks is a deputy in the Quincy office of the Internal Revenue.

Our Dr. John Hart was one of the candidates for the school committee in the November elections in Boston.

Make a memo on the Stag Dinner which will probably be held on December 29. Committees aren't closed for our Silver Anniversary celebration; join one!

Remember to write to Msgr. Flanigan with an enclosure!

'32 JOHN P. CONNOR 24 Crestwood Circle, Norwood

Our class president, Ed Gallagher, recently announced the formation of the Edward M. Gallagher Insurance Agency to conduct a general insurance business at 10 Post Office Square, Boston.

On August 21, Tom Connelly was married to Miss Eva Memmolo of West Somerville. Congratulations.

Father Bill Carroll ducked the summer heat by taking the pilgrimage with Bishop Minihan. Father toured Ireland, France, Spain, Portugal and Italy. While in Italy he was held up for driving through a red light and was fined 1,000 lira ($1.50).

The sympathy of the class is extended to Walter Kelley on the death of his sister, Agnes, and to Peter Cataldo, on the death of his sister.

Father Ed Bennett is stationed in Hudson, N. Y.

A welcome back to the Heights to Father Tom Walsh, S.J., who has been teaching at Holy Cross for several years.

While attending the World Series Phil Albano had a nice visit with general Ed Herlihy.

'33 JOHN J. BRENNAN 6 Cedar Street, Charlestown

Terry Griffin is with the U. S. Navy and is stationed at the Pentagon Bldg., Washington, D.C., and living in Falls Church, Virginia.

Dr. Joe Brennan, associate professor of philosophy at Barnard College, has been named executive officer of the Barnard philosophy department. He is the author of "Thomas Mann's World", published by Columbia University Press, and the "Meaning of Philosophy", published by Harper's.

Joe Dolan has been promoted to manager of the Sears, Roebuck Co., store in Bridgeport, Conn. The Dolans live in Norwalk and have three children.

Matt Connolly is the Chief Probation Officer for the Municipal Court of the City of Boston in the Dorchester District. Matt's daughter, Kathleen, is a second year student at the school of Education. Which fact must make Father Charles Donovan, S.J., Dean of the School of Education realize how long he has been graduated from B. C. when he has the daughter of a classmate enrolled in his School.

Fathers John J. Sullivan, S.J., and Charles McMullan, S.J., Rector and Dean respectively at St. George's College in Kingston, Jamaica, were back in Boston last summer and each was tendered a reception by his classmates before returning to Jamaica.

Terry McGovern is practising dentistry with an office on Market Street, Brighton; Henry Barnes, Walter McDonald and Joe Ford are connected with the V.A., at the Tremont St., Boston office; Neil Connors is an attorney with the Housing Authority in Boston; Ralph Ward is head of the Math Department at Brookline High School; Roger Walsh, also connected with Brookline High School completed his sabbatical year in which he toured 38 states in compiling material for a thesis on Juvenile Delinquency.

John Brennan is a revenue agent with the Internal Revenue Service in Boston. Incidentally, Ralph Ward, Roger Walsh and John Brennan are also football officials and each was elected president of the Officials' Association—Roger in 1949; Ralph in 1954 and John Brennan in 1955.

Charlie O'Brien is general chairman of the Alumni Fund and deserves a world of praise for the excellent job he is doing in that capacity; Atty. John Mackin is as usual a rabid and enthusiastic rooster at the football games; Bill Baker is with the New England Tel. & Tel., and is temporarily on assignment for them in New York City; Jim Connolly is chairman of the Infantile Paralysis Fund Drive for Suffolk County, and class chairman for the Alumni Fund; Leo Finn is in charge of the East Boston branch of the National Shawmut Bank.

So that we can keep abreast of the doings of class members please drop a line to your class correspondent at 6 Cedar St., Charlestown and give us some information on yourself and your family.

A final word—let's help Charlie O'Brien reach the goal set for the Alumni Fund and also give class agent Jim Connolly a lift if you have not as yet contributed. Do it now!

'34 DANIEL I. CRONIN 54 Arborway, Jamaica Plain

An enjoyable class reunion was held at Alumni Hall on November 14. Chairman Jim Fay and his committee did a fine job.

Members of the class were shocked at the sudden death from polio of Dr. Jim Flynn of Wellesley. The following represented the class at Dr. Flynn's funeral: Drs. Dave Corey and Arthur Taddeo, Jim Dunn, Walter Kelly, Bob Glennon, Maurice Joyce, Jack Dacey and Dan Cronin. The sympathy of the class is extended to Mrs. Flynn and the two Flynn children; also to Lou Messina on the death of his brother; to Jack Roach on the death of his father; and to Father Bill Noonan whose mother's death last winter had not previously been reported in this column.

Father John Saunders was recently reassigned from St. Bernard's, West Newton to St. Agatha's, East Milton.

Jim Mullin was recently appointed by Mayor Hynes as Executive Secretary of Boston's Civic Improvement Committee.

Jim Fay recently moved to his new home at 51 Radcliffe Road in Wellesley. Jim is associated with the firm of Hale, Sanderson, Byrnes and Morton. Jim has four children—James, Jr., Barbara, Nancy and Brian.

Charlie Boyce of Dorchester, still a bachelor, is associated with J. L. Sullivan Company, wholesale confectioners.

Ted Marier has been named associate conductor of the Cecilia Society of Boston and will lead the society in the first choral concert of its, 80th season on December 10.

The sympathy of the class is also extended to James J. Clerkin on the recent death of his father.

Joe Kelley of the Somerville High School faculty was recently elected President of the Somerville Schoolmen's Club. Joe has been on the teaching staff at Somerville High since 1947.

Which brings to mind that Tom Kelly and family spent a month in Florida during the past summer, Tom's primary motive being to scout the Orange Bowl for a choice location from which to view the Miami game.

Mike Collins, manager of the Municipal Light Department in Wakefield is president of the Wakefield Club for the 1955-56 season.

Sorry to hear that John Sheedy, distributor for a hearing aid company in the Hartford, Conn. area, was a victim of last summer's flood to both home and business.

Dom DeStefano is planning to carve his Thanksgiving turkey in his new home now under construction in Milton.

"Hank" Groden was the most disappointed member of the class when homecoming day was rained out. He had four blankets ready to spread on the library lawn and a caterer hired to provide the sandwiches for his kiddos.

Dick Maloney has been doing a valiant job as class representative of the Alumni Fund drive. If you can give him a lift by contacting any of our classmates, he'd be most appreciative.

'36 JOSEPH P. KEATING

Class officers for 1955-56 are: President, Mark Dalton; vice-president, Bob O'Hayre; Secretary, Sid Dunn, treasurer, Father Al Powers; class correspondent, Joe Keating, and Chairman of the Alumni Fund, George Mahoney.

More than 25 of the Class were in attendance at the last Alumni Day get-together when the above slate of officers were elected. Remember that this is an anniversary year and we should all lend our support to Mark Dalton's plans.

Sympathy of the class is extended to Joe King on the death of his mother last summer; Joe, who has been seriously ill, is now much better; Fred Roche has now completely recovered from his accident of last spring.

Keeping up with the news of a few of the class, congratulations are in order to Steve Hart who has just been appointed principal of the Stetson School in Randolph; to John Dooley who was married August 6th to Miss Gretchen Connors of Brighton. John is Chief of Finance, Army Engineering Corps in Boston. Congratulations also to George Mahoney who was married this summer.

Class President Ed. Phillips will be forwarding notices soon for a class get-together, probably Nov. 10 or 11. Ed's waterfront crews have been straining at the hawsers, what with Luckenbach liners continually on the move in and out of the port of Boston. Ed and Mary and all the little Phillips had an enjoyable summer at Scituate.

Col. Thomas A. Sullivan, the scribe who went military back in the late 30s, is back in this country for a spell and is stationed at the Army Quartermaster Research Center in Natick. Tom and his family bought a home at 3 Ruth Drive, Framingham.

Last time we saw Pete Veracka he was top lensman in the publicity department of New Haven Railroad, and lunching with George Killion.

Loran Sanford is doing a fine job as an educator in the Boston School system. Loran's Mrs. is the former Mary Gavin of Dorchester, whose brother, Dave, was a football teammate of Loran at Latin School.

Leo "Gene" Bonner is with John Hancock.

Remember Francis J. Burke? Our representative from Seekonk has been elected superintendent of Medway schools, in which town he has taken part in many community affairs and has been principal of the Medway Center School.

Jim McInerney is eastern division sales manager for National Distillers Products, Inc., in New York City. Seems only yesterday the president of the junior class was arranging for picture sittings.

It required our attendance at a New England clambake at Wentworth-by-the-sea near Portsmouth and a chat over a well-shared bottle of catsup to learn that the proprietor of a successful summer camp outside of Manchester, N.H., is Handy Andy Dominick, former football coach at Manchester Central.

Tom Gaquin, investigating executive with John Hancock, is a mighty contented Dad with his three little daughters. Tom, you'll recall, was a linguist for Uncle Sam down in the Latin countries. Remember Tom's French Academy offerings at the Heights? Tom attended the recent Holy Name conference in Pittsburgh.

John T. Galvin, our Sub Turri business manager, still moving the publicity for the Massachusetts Tax Payers Federation.

John L. Phalan is the Ph.D. who is giving you the inside on Housing in the Pilots.

Leo Coveney resides in Needham, is an executive with Edgerton, Germashausen and Grier, Inc., and former class agent for the Alumni Fund.

Which brings us around to presenting Bill Huxley, the 1955 Alumni Fund agent. Bill is back in New England after a long absence, makes his home in Hingham, has three boys and a girl. He is New England sales manager for Junket Brand Foods.

Mike Sullivan of Hyde Park and Miss Eileen Barron of Dorchester were married in early summer, causing more than a mild upset in the staunch bachelor's club of which Mike was a long-time leader. Mike is purchasing agent for Spencer-Kennedy Laboratory, Cambridge.

Pete Flaherty is a convincing talker when it comes to blood donations.

Til Feredzeni has changed the sights on his typewriter from U. S. Lawn Tennis to East Coast football.

Jim, "Shono" Shaughnessy, in the food purveying field, lives in Hingham and has six lovely children, including twins.

James E. Nolan has been promoted to manager of the Retailers Commercial Agency Inc., in the Boston office. The Retailers are affiliated with the Retail Credit Company. He joined the company in 1941 and, except for military service, has been with them since. He lives in West Roxbury.

It's Doctor Angelo A. DiMatta since the North End educator received his Doctor of Education from Calvin Coolidge College in Boston. He is submaster at the Sherwin School in Roxbury, is married to the former Julia Ruggiero and the father of three children, two boys and a girl.

Rev. George B. Gray, curate at St. Mary of the Assumption Church in Melrose, is a new member of the Bar Association. Father George was one of nine children. He will use his legal education "for the glory of God."

Heading for the wire . . . Tom McDermott busy pushing plumbing supplies . . . "Fuzzer" Fitzgerald never misses a time at the Heights . . . David I. Keniry now a Natick resident . . . Jim Dineen wielding the legal stick at Liberty Mutual . . . Joseph J. Garrahan of Framingham active in the B. C. Club of Central Massachusetts . . . Bud Lavin, downtown publicitor . . . Attorney Dick Sanderson, a Natick assessor who can expect a visit from your agent right after presstime.

Give Bill Huxley a hand in his difficult job as Alumni Fund agent and won't you take a moment to drop a line about yourself to your correspondent at 16 Hemlock Drive, Natick.

Our Class Agent Bob Callahan reports that according to the latest figures in the current Alumni Fund we have a total of $1,348.00 contributed and $125.00 pledged BUT there are 48 members of the class who gave last year and have not as yet been heard from this year. We feel certain that most of these 48 and others intend to contribute and encourage them to send along their checks to Bill Flynn so that our class will be raised in the alumni standing to the position where it should be.

Ed Supple has opened an office at 39 Grove Street in Wellesley where he will handle all lines of insurance including life, group, accident and health, fire, automobile and all forms of casualty coverage.

Frank Glynn is rapidly becoming '38's gift to television. Frank again appeared on a nation-wide hookup of "Two for the Money" with Sam Levinson, doing alright in the questions that were put to him and bringing home a loot of almost a thousand dollars. Previously he had appeared on a similar program with Fred Allen.

The American College of Life Underwriters recently awarded Frank Corbett the professional designation "Chartered Life Underwriter". Before the opening of classes Father Maxwell announced the appointment of Father Dick Burke, S.J. as acting Dean of the School of Social Work. After graduating with us Father Burke attended the School of Social Work and entered the Society in 1940. Five years later he received his Master of Arts Degree at Weston College, and in 1948 was awarded his Masters in Sociology from St. Louis University.

all Hearst Newspapers in the U. S. The Sheehans are now living in Natick.

Frank Finnegan has been promoted to the rank of captain of the Boston Fire Department. Tom Cosgrove teaches in the Malden Schools.

For mortgages on your homes get in touch with Paul Bartholomew who is an assistant vice-president of the Essex Trust Co. in Lynn. We also learn that we have two druggists in our class—Bob McGinnis who is the owner of Rice's drug Store in Milford where Bob is living, and Jack Fitzgerald, the owner of Fitzgerald's Drug Store in Weymouth. Jack is one of the loyal supporters of the B. C. football team, even braving the Brandeis game at Alumni Field and the Detroit game at Fenway Park under very unfavorable conditions.

Al Kelleher is a staff assistant of the Raytheon Manufacturing Co. Bob O'Connell has a tough decision to make when B. C. plays B. U. Bob is an assistant purchasing agent at B.U., which side of the field should he sit on?

Joe Powers, a civil engineer for the M.T.A., is living in Brookline.

Herb Scannell and Ed Corrigan and their wives getting together at Alumni Hall after the Brandeis game.

Frank Solari (Skip) is an inspector for the Boston Traffic commission.

Reference has been made from time to time to the desperate measures adopted by us correspondents to insure enough news to fill out these Class Notes. This issue is no exception. Our lead item (and an exclusive!) ... Tom Turnan was married Sept. 10 to the former Barbara Anne Finneran of Arlington, where the couple now resides. John G. Murphy came down (up) from Bangor to ush. Figuring in other items matrimonial was Sig Somy, married July 9 to the former Joan Pullman of Medford. Fr. Jim Joyce of Cardinal O'Connell Seminary officiated.

Thirty-nine is bulging with vice-presidents in charge of giving out money. Andy O'Brien was recently promoted from Ass't. Treas. to Ass't. V.P. of the Norfolk County Trust's Real Estate Department. Frank Brennan is Vice Pres. of the Massachusetts Business Development Corp. which, in the last 18 months, has loaned 6 1/2 million dollars to stimulate Bay State Industrial progress. In other matters mercantile Charlie Murphy, Ass't Controller of Boston's Chandler & Co., was elected Ass't. Treas. and Controller of Gladnings, Inc. Providence department store. Jerry Troy was advanced from Junior to Senior Vice-Commander of the Massachusetts Department of the Disabled American Veterans. Frank Fallon has passed the Bar. Fred Norton, Registrar at Holy Cross is the father of twins. Paul Devlin has rejoined the Faculty at the Business School.

Happy notes in the recuperation division... Ed Hall is recovering from a serious illness and ex-prexy John Flynn's son Chris is on the mend after a summer long bout with polio.

The following events we feel are interesting though not necessarily interrelated. Hal Langlois made the headlines again as the key figure in the settlement of a riot at the Rhode Island State Penitentiary and Mike Smigelski has been appointed Probation Officer for the East Cambridge (3rd) District Court.

The Walter Grady's are the parents of a fifth child, fourth son, Paul. Their home address is 3625 Rushland Avenue, Toledo, Ohio.

Father Joe Fallon, S.J., is a curate at St. Ignatius Church, Chestnut Hill.

The sympathy of the class is extended to Bill Holland on the death of his father.

A final memo, and this from Larry Fitzgerald, Class Agent for the Alumni Fund. If every Thirty-Niner who contributed last year, but hasn't as yet put it on the line for '55, will get in touch with Larry to adjust matters the Class of 1939 may still not lose its rightful prominence in this year's campaign. Please give him a holler.

Bob Power was married this summer to Virginia Butler (Trinity) of Cambridge. He is now principal of North East Elementary School, Waltham.

Joe Costigan has been appointed manager of the White Motor Co., Newark, N. J. branch, and is now living in New Jersey.

Ed Kenny and his family visited Boston this summer. Ed is a partner in the law firm of Winston, Strawn, Black and Townner, and lives in Evanston, Illinois.

Dave Lucey has returned to coaching circles—now coaching at Peabody High.

We have reached $\frac{1}{2}$ of our goal in our 15th anniversary class gift. We urge all those who have not yet contributed to send in their donation as soon as possible.

Receiving congratulations are the Mark Keyes' on the birth of Mark Edwin on October 7; Joe Shea on receiving the Ph.D., from Catholic University in June; Joe Skerry who has recently opened his own office in Beverly. Joe has a full broker's license entitling him to write insurance of all types; John Phelan who has been appointed director of employee and public relations for John H. Breck, Inc., Springfield.

Adolph Kissell was managing director of the Hynes for Mayor campaign.

The condolences of classmates are extended to John Sullivan on the loss of his six-year old daughter, to Paul Hefron on the death of his father, and to Joe Scannell on the death of his father.

A festive evening at the home of former CBA professor John Drumme was enjoyed by over 30 members of the class early in June. The present CBA deans, Rev. W. Seavey Joyce, S.J., and his able assistant Rev. Francis B. McManus, S.J., were present and there was much reminiscing about the early days of the CBA. Many thanks to Mr. Drumme for a memorable evening and one of the largest get-togethers since graduation.

Tim Sullivan, taking time off from his CPA and tax practice in Philadelphia made one of his rare visits to Boston this summer.

Tom McMahon is moving to Albany, N. Y. where he takes over as regional manager for Pontiac Division of General Motors.

Amby Claus, who recently passed the bar exam is our first CPA-Attorney. Congratulations, Amby.

Arthur Curry and John McGloin became fathers for the second time—to each a baby girl.

At the Carling's Open Tourney Jim Reilly and Arthur Curry received a few pointers while John Connery supervised the communications set-up.

His classmates wish a speedy recovery to Joe McCann who was released from the hospital on October 22 after a bout with polio.

The Alumni

as students and became Alumni. Many new and adventuresome things have fallen in our path since then. Most of us have gone in the service and many of us are out or on the way out. Don McCusker, Jim Tibert, Jim Doherty, and well all the rest of the ROTC Students who went in immediately after graduation should be out by now. Some of the men who went into the Marines like Jim Wilwerth and Jack O'Loughlin should be out also. Saw Hector "Kiola" at Norfolk about two months ago, it was his last day in the service. Frank Stapleton wrote and informed me that Frank Tanner might get out of the Army early. Frank (Tanner) is or has been stationed in Portsmouth N.H., just a few miles from his wife's home in Sanford Maine. Frank (Stapleton) says he will soon be out. He and the Mrs. have been house hunting for the past few weeks. Tom Smith (whose apartment I use in Washington) has been vacationing in Miami. Tom is still with BuPers in D.C. Some guys get all the breaks.

Well that is enough for Uncle Sam. Lets look to the brighter side of the picture. Wait—just received word that Gerry McDonell and Jack Maloney have decided to stay in the Service. They both just recently accepted regular Marine Commissions. Now let's see the marriage announcements.

Bill Ohrenberger and Barb Kelly made the altar in June.

Bill Follen of the Air Force becomes the groom of Ann Hogan of Wollaston.

Bob Sullivan of Waban and the Navy takes Irene Connally of New York for a bride. Alice Sylvester and Vincent Pizzano were married in June. Miss Natalie F. Rodger and Ed McAndrews announce their engagement. They plan to make it a winter wedding.

On November 19 in Phoenix, Arizona, Lt. Bill Emmons will wed Mary Ellen Martin. Bill is stationed at William Air Force Base in Chandler, Arizona.

Charles L. McManus, Lynn, was awarded his M.S.W. from the College in June. Charlie completed his thesis on "Psychiatric Casework in the Treatment of Veterans, diagnosed, Psycho-neurosis Conversion Reaction". He is now employed as a psychiatric medical social worker at Danvers State Hospital.

Here's an interesting note: Jack Teachan did attend the annual meeting of the American Law Student Association which was held in Philly last August.

Just can't seem to stay away from Uncle Sam—here are some more late notes from "our boys in uniform" . . . Neil O'Keefe has finished his tour as the navigator aboard the USS Knapp and is a civilian again. . . . Bob Sullivan of Cambridge is in Ingrandes, France playing baseball . . . Paul Gannon, having completed language school at Monterey is on his way to Germany . . . Al Palmer has been working quite steady over in Korea . . .

One more note for all Florida vacationists, Jack O'Leary owns a motel in West Palm Beach . . . be sure to look him up if you get down that way. I sure will . . .

Well that is it for this edition for A. & S. Be sure to write us and let us know if anything interesting happens to you or your friends. See you at Alumni Hall some civilian Saturday night.

Congratulations to the Edward Du-gans of Seattle, Washington who are the proud parents of a baby girl, Julianne, born September 8, 1955.

A bit of news on Lt. Paul C. Kiley,

U.S.M.C.R. recently returned from a years duty in Japan and Korea and was married to Carolyn Noonan of Dorches-ter on June 11th. Lt. Kiley awaited discharge from the service in Septem-ber. Goodluck to the Kiley's.

A note from one of our classmates Herb McCarthy with the 867th Field Artillery Battalion. He is still stationed in Heilbronn, Germany also with him is Frank Mahoney, A & S, who is in B. Battery of the same outfit. They will both be stateside in June of '57. Also, Francis Murray stationed in Heilbronn with his wife Alice and son, Francis, Jr. was promoted to 1st Lieutenant in Jan. of '55.

John J. Burns graduated from the Harvard Bus. School on June 16th with a Master in Bus. Ed. degree. He majored in banking and finance.

Local firm (Chelsea Clock) cited in B.C. thesis submitted by Joseph D'Avella in partial fulfillment of the requirements for a Master of Arts degree awarded by B.C. Graduate School this past June. D'Avella worked at the world famous plant for approximately six years before entering B.C. D'Avella is also a graduate of Mechanic Arts High School.

Those Bells that never stop ringing are for Marjorie Wood wed to Aidan B. Underwood. The couple will reside in Arlington. Vows were exchanged between Barbara M. Tholander and Duane F. O'Doherty. After honeymooning in N. H. the couple will make their home in Melrose. Also married were Patricia Conlon and Lt. Joseph T. Carroll. Lt. Carroll is stationed at the Newport Naval Station, Newport, R.I. where the couple will reside upon return from their honeymoon.

Recent engagements were Eileen-MacVarish to James A. Lynch—Anna Catherine DeVita to Robert E. Doyle—Loretta Catherine Sheehan to Henry J. Morris and also Mary Helen Colby to Bernard P. Doherty.

'54 JOHN J. CURTIN, JR. 24 Laurel Lane, Dedham

Many of our classmates found the summer an excellent time for a honeymoon. Here are those that have been called to our attention:

During Ed Doherty's stay at the Heights he met Mary Macy Finn, a student at the School of Education. Just recently they were married. Ed, general manager of the Lacey Sales Institute plans to live with his bride in Lincoln. Another Ed, Ed Nugent, married Joan MacInnis. The class president of our Junior year, Bob Jasse took time off from his studies at Wharton School of Finance and Commerce to walk to the altar with Ann Marie Regan. Charles Doherty and Joan Dacey are now one. Connecticut has gained a Boston College man. Leo Walker and Marjorie Ann O'Neill are now living in Bradford. The ranks of New York's alumni are swelled by the addition of John Thornton. He and his bride, June Randall, now live in Schenectady. Roland Shea and Pat Thornton found Cape Cod an attractive place to honeymoon this summer. Jack Devereaux, former co-editor of the Heights, has plenty of news clippings publicizing his marriage to Carol Delaney. Probably the only thing the Heights didn't print was marriages.

John Kohr has Jean Marie Price to help with his new job as an engineering writer with Jackson, Moreland, Engineering Co. Bob Gately is making beautiful music with Eileen DeSantis. Two classmates who received Masters degrees from Boston Teachers College in June were just married: Will Burke and Jean Drenan, and Ed Donlan and Helen Hogan. Al Bronsky, Jr., Ph. D., candidate at Purdue, is married to Betty O'Neil. Other newlyweds include Ralph Lambert and Patricia Ann McVey; Dan Hession and Anne Miles and Leslie Woods and Anne Marie Heddermon.

Bill Beaton wants the class to know that he will be in Hawaii for the next two years, courtesy of Uncle Sam.

Dick Murphy reports that he is out at Notre Dame working on a Ph. D. and expects to receive his Masters degree at B. C. next summer. Former senior prefect of Sodality Dick McCarthy is at Babson getting his Masters degree in Business Administration.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bellorado were blessed with a baby girl, Karen Ann, born at the base hospital in Wertheim, Germany.

Dick Foy and John Cafferty are stationed with First Finance Disbursing Section at Inchon Replacement Depot. Any other classmates around there for an Eagle reunion?

Lt. George Bonner is at Camp Pendleton, California. He was married to Claire Marie Sullivan on September 12.

If you are ever in the Rochester, N. Y. area be sure to see Ed Marnell who is chief steward at the Rochester Hotel.

Among the many B. C. men at Heilbronn, Germany is 2nd Lt. Louis J. Totino. Lou is on the staff of the 60th F. A. Bn., as Personnel Officer and Assistant Adjutant.

The class extends most sincere sympathy to our president Joe Schmitz on the death of his wife. Joe's address in Rochester, N. Y., is 560 Titus Avenue.

A final note, the entire group from the class of '54 at B.C. Law passed, and were we surprised!

Because your class correspondent has no means of checking the accuracy of unsigned letters, we will be unable to use information unless those furnishing it sign their names.

'55 PAUL C. MURRAY 21 Prospect Hill Ave., Somerville FRANK E. AHEARN, CBA 558 Washington St., Brighton

It was raining the night of June 25, and unseasonably cold, especially so on the Boston Belle making her nightly cruise around Boston Harbor. About 10 p.m. there was a cry "Man overboard" and two forms could be observed swimming to the aid of the drowning man. One of the men who risked his life attempting the rescue was Jack Harold who is to be congratulated for a truly courageous and daring feat. Presently Jack is serving his country at Fort Dix, N. J.

Other inductees include Al Tassinari, Jack Higgins, Jim Alvord, Dave Flynn, Norman Campanaro, Jim Zoeller and Gerry Tobin.

"Tex" Bernier is working for Sears Roebuck in New Jersey, and many of the Accounting majors are making their start to fame and fortune in New York City.

Some of the recent brides and bridegrooms: Edward O'Grady and Mary Lee Bates; Sylvester Farrell and Elizabeth Ann Springer. Syl is employed by the government Dept. of Defense in Washington, D. C. The engaged members of our class include Francis Flood to Dorothy McCauley of Medford. Rudolph Ciani and Esther Fulmore; Burton Leary and Sheila Anne O'Donnell. There are many of our classmates at Grad. school this year. Walter Bankowski and Frank Callahan are in Education, Terry Dewsnap, Gerry Pine and Bob Kearns—English; Joe Donahue, Mike Poczatek, Frank Ahearn and Ed McDonough are studying at B. C. Law School.

John Cuoco is with the Lynn Savings Bank.

Bob Connors, Steve Dowling, Dick Dunleavy, Dave Lyons and Jim Dever are at OCS in Newport, Rhode Island.

Al Sutherby is in Washington, D. C. working with the government.

September 24, Homecoming Day, drew a good representation from the Class of '55.

Following in his father's footsteps, Gerry Donahue is teaching at Somerville High School.

We are praying for a fast recovery for Gene Allen and Vin Milano who were stricken with polio.

Law School

Joseph F. McCarthy, LL.B., '36
11 Hardwick St., Brighton

Among the 1955 graduates: Charles F. Barrett, highest ranking student and winner of the Class of 1953 Honor Award, has been appointed Clerk for Judge Ronan of the Supreme Judicial Court of Mass.

John P. Carty, Jr., is associated with the office of Philip E. Pofcher, '47, in Roslindale.

George B. Crane, former student editor of the "Annual Survey of Massachusetts Law" is with the office of Peabody, Kaufman and Brewer, Boston.

John P. Davey is associated with Atty. Robert A. Shea, 84 State Street, Boston; Vincent M. Germani is in the office of John W. McIntyre, '34, in Attleboro; James D. Gracey, also formerly of the staff of the "Annual Survey of Massachusetts Law", has been selected for the office of Atty. J. J. Kressler in Worcester.

Frank J. McGee, Jr., who was active in many extracurricular activities including the "Annual Survey" is engaged in graduate study at the Georgetown University Law School where he is also a Charles A. Keigwin Teaching Fellow.

Paul F. McKeown of Providence, R. I., has been appointed clerk for Judge Day of the U. S. District Court for the District of Rhode Island; Charles F. Murphy is in the legal department of the Office of the Quartermaster General, Natick, where he will specialize in patent law; Robert J. Richards, Jr., is doing graduate work in Taxation at New York University Law School where he is also a Research Fellow; David L. Whitney has joined the office staff of Lynch and Connelly, Park Square Building, Boston.

In the Class of 1954, Robert T. Abrams is in practice with Abrams and Abrams, Pemberton Square, Boston; Walter F. Maguire is in the law department of the city of Boston; Vincent P. McQueeny is with the U. S. Department of Justice, Washington, D.C.

Julian J. D'Agostine, '53, and William J. Dooley, '52, were in the same class at the Univ. of Virginia Law School for training in the U. S. Army, Dept. of the Judge Advocate General. Both men are now on active duty and are quite busy in the military tribunals of the Army.

J. Norman O'Connor, '53, is now a partner in the firm of Donovan and O'Connor, 25 Park Street, Adams, Mass.

We are pleased to welcome to the Law School Faculty two young men of great promise, Assistant Dean and Assistant-Professor Rev. Robert F. Drinan, S.J., and Assistant-Professor William E. Hogan. Father Drinan, who has his A.B. ('42) and A.M. degrees from the College and his LL.B. and LL.M. degrees from Georgetown University Law School will teach Crimes and Domestic Relations.

Professor Hogan was graduated from the College in 1949 with the A.B. degree, cum laude, and from the Law School, cum laude, in 1952, ranking first in his class. He will teach Commercial Law and Restitution.

coming up at alumni hall . . .

RALLY: NIGHT BEFORE THE B. C.—H. C. GAME

Make plans now to set aside Friday night, November 25, to attend the Alumni—Student Rally on Alumni Field.

Get together at Alumni Hall before and after the Rally with your fellow Alumni and friends. Reminiscing and predicting will be the order of the evening.

OPEN HOUSE—NIGHT OF THE B. C.—H. C. GAME

Immediately after the game on Saturday, November 26, an Open House and Cocktail Party is on the program at Alumni Hall. Dancing from 5 to 12 to Guy Ormandy's music, and a buffet will be served for those who desire it. No reservations are necessary. All are welcome.

FOOTBALL FILM

Coach Mike Holovak will show the film of the B. C. - H. C. game on Wednesday, November 30, 8 P.M., at Alumni Hall.

NEW YEAR'S EVE

A gala celebration is planned to "ring out the old — ring in the new" at the Hall on New Year's Eve, Saturday, December 31. Guy Ormandy's Orchestra will provide music for dancing, and a buffet supper will be served. This is one of the most popular affairs on the Hall calendar, and admission is by reservation only as has been the custom in past years.

SATURDAY NIGHTS

Dancing continues as usual at Alumni Hall every Saturday night, from 8 until 12 P.M. Admission: $1.50 each couple.

WEDDING RECEPTIONS

The Hall is available to Alumni for wedding receptions. For information call the Alumni office — BI 4-5230.

ROLL IT UP FOR B.C.

With six weeks to go,
the Alumni Fund is still $15,000 short of the goal-line.
Let's go for that $100,000 touchdown.
